Governorship Races May Determine Presidential Candidates

NEW YORK WATCHED

If Dewey Wins Election He May Be Republican Nominee

Washington—(AP)—The real tests of strength between the country's two major political parties this fall will come, in the opinion of many politicians here, in the governorship races.

While both Republicans and Democrats will put up stiff fights over senate and house seats, it is expected the real force will go into the gubernatorial campaigns because of their bearings on 1940 presidential election chances.

Governorships are at stake in 33 states. Nominations were completed yesterday when New York Democrats drafted Governor Herbert H. Lehman to seek his fourth term in a race against Racket-smasher Thomas E. Dewey, whom the Republicans had nominated a day earlier.

Lehman was the eleventh Democrat to be renominated. Four Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and one Progressive also won party assignments to run again.

Presidential Prospects

Out of these 33 races, informed Washingtonians agree, will come some strong contenders for presidential nominations two years hence. Victory in New York would put Dewey high among these.

There is considerable belief here that the Democratic strategy in peremptory election to run against Lehman was concerned greatly with hampering whatever national aspirations Republicans may have for Dewey.

Elimination efforts are not all on one side, however. Republican spokesmen say privately they would like to defeat Governor Frank Murphy in Michigan partly because of the speculation that has centered on him.

Meanwhile, when White House interest in the Michigan race was disclosed last night in a speech at Grand Rapids by Interior Secretary Ickes. He said that "Franklin D. Roosevelt needs Frank Murphy once more as governor of Michigan."

Murphy is opposed by Republican Nominee Frank D. Fitzgerald, former governor whom he defeated for reelection in 1936.

Other Battles

Both the New York and Michigan struggles will be much in the spotlight between now and the Nov. 8 balloting, but they are by no means the only ones in which Democrats and Republicans will meet in tooth-and-nail battles.

According to the expectations of party spokesmen here, hot fights are in prospect also in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Iowa, Minnesota, California, Oregon and Wisconsin among others.

Wisconsin is one of the states where a multi-party battle is in prospect. There, Progressive Governor Philip F. LaFollette is seeking reelection against Robert K. Henry, the Democratic nominee, Julius P. Heil, Republican, and Frank W. Smith, Union. Republicans base their hopes there on the fact they rolled up a heavier primary vote than any other party.

A three-sided race is underway in Minnesota where Farm-Labor Governor Elmer A. Benson is opposed for reelection by Thomas Gallagher, the Democratic nominee, and Harold Stassen, Republican choice.

Results of the Minnesota and Wisconsin elections will be studied closely for their effect on the mid-western liberal party movement to which Governor LaFollette gave new national aspects during the summer when he formally launched the Progressives on a national program.

Buckman Officers Ordered to Face New Prosecution

Charges Based on Alleged Illegal Sales in Manitowoc County

Madison—(AP)—Attorney General O. S. Loomis today ordered a new prosecution of Buckman and Company officials based on the alleged illegal sale of unregistered securities in Manitowoc county.

Loomis filed a complaint with Judge O. T. Bredesen of the Manitowoc county municipal court naming Erwin Fanta, Manitowoc agent of the now defunct brokerage house and the principal officers, President B. E. Buckman, Vice President L. C. George and Secretary E. C. Holt.

Buckman, George and Holt are serving terms in Waupun prison for the sale of unregistered stock in Milwaukee county.

The new complaint listed the following sales of securities to Manitowoc residents:

Fifty shares of Condor Pictures and 25 shares of Standard Commercial Tobacco on the sum of $250 to Otto Sixel.

HITS AT BANKERS

Witness for Carriers Says They 'Face Financial Crisis'

Washington—(AP)—Tom Davis, a labor lawyer, declared today that the attempt to cut railway employee wages 15 per cent was "only part and parcel of a nationwide conspiracy to cut the wages of every worker in the land, to delay and prevent recovery and to discredit the administration."

The following-haired attorney for the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen made this statement at the second day's hearings of President Roosevelt's emergency strike board, adding his view that banker control was the cause of the railroad problem which the carriers were trying to solve with wage cuts.

Dr. J. H. Parnell, witness for the carriers, said that following "seven lean years" of reduced traffic and inadequate earnings "the railroads face a financial crisis."

Parnell, who is director of the bureau of railway economics of the Association of American Railroads, said carriers during the first eight months of 1938 failed by $182,000,000 to earn interest and other fixed charges.

"The insincerity of the railroads in their effort to force a wage cut on their workers cannot but be apparent by their action," Davis declared.

One of the most glaring examples of inconsistency and bad faith is found in the record of the Chicago and North Western which is today in the hands of a receiver. In 1935 this bankrupt road has 16 officers receiving $10,000 or more per year, with a total salary of $170,980.

"Still in bankruptcy, still claiming it cannot meet operating expenses," still willing to pauperize its workers, it had increased the number of officers receiving $10,000 or more per year in 1935 from 18 to 32 in 1937 and paid them $531,720."

Murphy Promises To Draft 'Bill of Rights for Labor'

Grand Rapids, Mich.—(AP)—Governor Frank Murphy told the Michigan Democratic state convention today that if reelected next November he would endeavor to carry out a number of "errands," including the drafting of a "bill of rights for labor," the promotion of peace between worker and employer and improved standards of public health and general security.

The convention delegates, who last night heard Secretary Harold L. Ickes assert that President Roosevelt "needs Frank Murphy as governor of Michigan," heard the governor promise work for "adequate school financing," farm aid and "streamlining of governmental structure."

Resolutions approved Governor Murphy's labor policies, giving weight to early enactment of the sit-down strikes of 1937 would be an issue in the election campaign.

Renominated by the convention were Secretary of State Leon D. Case, State Treasurer Theodore I. Storer and Auditor General George T. Gundry.

Nash-Kelvinator Talks To Be Resumed Monday

Racine—(AP)—Jack Kyle, secretary of the state labor board, announced today negotiations in the labor dispute which has closed Nash-Kelvinator corporation plants in Wisconsin would be resumed Monday.

Kyle said a modified proposal by the Racine Nash local of the United Automobile Workers would be presented to company officials at the city hall here at a meeting with representatives of locals in Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha.

A group of Kenosha business men was reported circulating a petition here asking for personal mediation of Governor Philip LaFollette, who earlier in the week said he would take a hand in the controversy if it remained unsettled today.

Waupaca County Burglar Is Sentenced to Prison

Stevens Point—(AP)—Circuit Judge Byron B. Park yesterday sentenced Wilbur J. Wright, 38, of Memphis, Tenn., to serve one to six years in the state penitentiary. Wright, alias Willis Leverance, admitted breaking into a store at Northland, Waupaca county, and taking $150 worth of merchandise.

District Attorney Paul Roman said Wright's record included a 25-month sentence to Waupun for bank robbery, and a two-year sentence at Jefferson City, Mo., for receiving stolen property.

Many Duck Hunters Back Home Early To Escape Mosquito Hordes During First Day of Season in Badger State

Madison—(AP)—Hordes of mosquitoes plagued duck hunters on Wisconsin marshes today at the opening of a 45 days waterfowl season.

Madison hunters reported the ducks were numerous but the birds were greatly outnumbered by the singing insects. Many nimble ducks were seen to escape the giant pesiferous diptera and the more common culex pipiens.

However, Frank Mazant, sporting goods store operator and state skeet champion, said he had heard some glowing reports on the duck crop. There was little shooting on the lakes, he said, but pot-holes and slough hunters found blue and green-winged teal unusually numerous.

Mazant, who chose a lake-front blind, said he didn't fire a shot. "Most of our native ducks have scattered because of recent heavy rain," Mazant explained. "They have found it convenient to settle on ponds and creeks near favored feeding grounds. Lake-front shooting will be better though after the ducks have been chased away from the ponds a few times."

E. L. Chambers, state entomologist, said the mosquito problem would continue until the first heavy frost. He said Dr. Charles E. Fluke and associates at the University of Wisconsin have been experimenting with a pyrethrum powder, obtained from the petals of an oriental plant, in a mosquito eradication campaign, spreading about 20 pounds of powder to the acre.

"The program is effective," Chambers said, "on limited areas such as a football field, but it is as yet impractical as a means of giving protection and relief to the duck hunters."

30,000 MARCHING IN

Czechoslovak Troops And Police Withdraw From Egerland

BY MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Headquarters of the German Army of Occupation, Passau, Germany—(AP)—The main body of the German army crossed the Czechoslovak frontier at 2 o'clock p. m. (7 a. m. C. S. T.) today, to start its formal occupation of Sudetenland.

Reconnoitering units had preceded the main body of the occupation force across the border during the early morning.

The force, estimated at about 30,000 men, was commanded by Colonel General Ritter Von Leeb.

It planned to occupy about one-quarter of the first zone of the ceded territory today, going as far as Warmer and Moldau rivers.

As the German troops advanced, they were separated from Czechoslovak forces by a neutral zone 3,000 meters (3,270 yards) wide, running roughly parallel to the new frontier.

Military law ruled the first Czechoslovak zone occupied by the German army.

Foreigners not attached to headquarters or not accompanied by officers were subject to immediate arrest.

Strict military observation was also in force along the German side of the frontier.

The first zone taken over from the Czechoslovaks stretched from the border town of Stubenbach through the towns of Rebburg, Wallern and Reasberg, curving downwards toward the frontier just outside of Krumau and outside Kaplitz to the frontier town of Unterhaid.

Krumau, the chief town of the region, and Kaplitz were not included in the German occupation. It was assumed at headquarters the Czechs had withdrawn to Krumau, using the city as a new frontier base. Twenty foreign newspapermen were accredited to the army of occupation. They were warned not to stray from a group.

Receiver Hopes to Reach Agreement

Wants Stop-Gap Contract To Permit Resumption Of Operations

Chicago—(AP)—Agreement on general terms of a labor contract to end the difference which have tied up the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad since Aug. 16 was announced today by the negotiating committee.

Chicago—(AP)—While rails on the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee road continued to rust, Colonel A. A. Sprague, receiver for the strike and carrier, resumed conferences today with the hope of negotiating a stop-gap contract with operating employees.

Earlier in the week, mediators had felt that service might be resumed today, but Sprague announced last night that "negotiations with representatives of the men have not proceeded to the point where resumption of service is possible."

The receiver was authorized by the federal court to negotiate short-term contract with the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees, who voted to quit work Aug. 16 when a 15 per cent wage cut was ordered. He was until Wednesday to work out a contract.

A spokesman for Sprague said that nation jurisdictional questions, which arose after the strike was called, still delayed an agreement. Two railroad brotherhoods seek to be named the bargaining agent for the road's employees. The Amalgamated, for 19 years previous to the controversy, had held a contract with the road.

Teschen and Friedstadt Districts Will be Ceded

Prague—(AP)—Czechoslovakia yielded today to Poland's demands for a slice of her territory.

The cabinet's "painful" decision, in face of Polish threats of force, came even as Czechoslovak troops were retreating from Sudetenland to permit German soldiers to occupy the first of four zones Germany reluctantly was ceding.

A communique said: "The government of the republic met this morning under the president of the republic at the chateau of Prague.

"During this meeting it examined carefully the note of the Polish government dated Sept. 30, containing an ultimatum to cede part of the territory of Teschen.

"After detailed deliberations on this demand, envisaging the difficulty of the international situation and constrained by circumstances resulting from the decision at Munich, the government could only resolve to accept Poland's proposition.

"The government took this painful decision in full accord with responsible persons of the political parties.

"It took it conscious of the fact that any other decision would have produced new and painful complications."

Warsaw—(AP)—Czechoslovakia accepted Poland's territorial demands in full today, thereby averting a threatened invasion.

Under terms of the demands the part of the city of Teschen on the Czechoslovak side of the border will be transferred to Poland before 2 o'clock p. m. Sunday (7 a. m. C. S. T.).

Within 10 days Czechoslovakia will transfer to Poland the remainder of the Teschen district and the entire district of Friedstadt.

Matters of other territories and plebiscites will be settled in direct negotiations between Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia also agreed to release immediately all persons of Polish nationality from the Czechoslovak army and to free all Poles imprisoned for political reasons.

A government communique announcing the settlement stated that "the Polish government meets with great joy the news of the conclusion of a painful quarrel between the two nations and a settlement corresponding to the peaceful intentions of Poland."

Chimpanzee Roped To Save Baby Chimp From Starvation

New Orleans—(AP)—A lassoo around the arms of Mrs. Luizette, stubborn lady chimpanzee today saved the "monkey business" troubling Audubon Park zoo.

Since Wednesday Mrs. Luizette had been holding in her hairy arms the brand new baby of Mrs. Coco, another lady chimp.

Joe Marietta, agent for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and zoo keepers finally roped Mrs. Luizette this morning and took away the starving infant.

The bewildered little ape had had nothing to eat—and not a drop of drink—since Wednesday, when, just as it was born, its roughneck papa, Pete, slammed its mother up against the cage, forcing her to drop the baby to the floor.

At that instant Mrs. Luizette, who three years ago gave birth to a baby that died, dashed in, snatched up the newborn chimp, and marched off with it with a fierce, grinning and growling the monkey words for "kindness keepers."

Beaten Candidate Asks Investigation

Michael Hall Wants Hopkins to Probe WPA In Wisconsin

Superior—(AP)—An investigation of the WPA in Wisconsin was asked today by Assemblyman Michael Hall, defeated Progressive candidate for the state senate.

Hall charged in a letter he announced he had written to Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, that Senator Phil Nelson, victorious candidate, had benefited through the demotion Aug. 30 of a dozen WPA foremen and superintendents, and their reinstatement within a week.

Rumors were circulated that the demotions were made at his instigation, Hall said, but his own investigation convinced him that district WPA officials were guided by merit and an order from Madison calling for registration of WPA supervisors.

Neither District Director Charles Gill nor State Director P. D. Flanner heeded his request for an investigation and airing of the incident, Hall declared. Instead, he said, E. D. Ingold, assistant to Flanner, conferred with Gill and Nelson at Superior Aug. 31, and on the following day Nelson stated the demoted men would be reinstated and "petty politicians" would be prevented from interfering with the WPA.

Hall said he had also given Hopkins newspaper clippings bearing out his contentions.

Surrenders in Chicago To Face Federal Charge

Chicago—(AP)—Alexander J. McKay, who resigned as chairman of the Cook county board of election commissioners last yesterday, surrendered at the United States marshal's office today on a federal indictment for alleged falsification of FWA project reports.

With J. H. McCaughy and J. B. Nystrom, who were secretaries of McKay's now defunct construction company, the former election official was fingerprinted. The three men were released after furnishing $2,500 bonds each.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarcekl accepted McKay's resignation soon after the indictments were returned.

Varying Views on Medical Program Aired at Confab

Hopkins' Aid Says Private Practice Has Failed to Keep Step With Times

Milwaukee—(7)—Opposite viewpoints on the issue of whether a nationally subsidized program of medical care should replace the personal attention of a physician were presented to the thirty-fifth Wisconsin Conference of Social Work last night.

Dr. John A. Kingsbury of Washington, D. C., administrative assistant to WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, asserted that private medical practice has failed to keep step with the times and has "come to grief on the rocks and shoals of a business world."

J. C. Crownhart of Madison, secretary of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin, declared that the present medical structure is "a foundation that time and stress have proven worthy as a basis for our continued building."

In advocating creation of a nationally subsidized system of compulsory health insurance, Dr. Kingsbury said he wished to make it clear he did not favor it as an alternative to public medicine or extension of federal, state or local facilities.

Programs Progressing

Voluntary public health programs are making progress, he admitted, but said they reach only thousands, while millions might be reached by a compulsory program. In his "rebuttal," Crownhart declared: "In our most serious illnesses identical treatment is oftentimes nearly as rare as identical twins. With all our vast attainment in the science of medicine and the individual and his illness needs. The tremendous advance in the science of medicine but further emphasis the ever pressing need for personalizing attention in the art of its application."

"When the state enters on the field of sickness care, the citizenry has every right to assume that care will be not only in accord with sound practice, but will be in an amount that will meet at least the standards of so-called private practice."

Wisconsin, Crownhart said, stands among the first three healthiest states in the nation.

Charles E. Madison, succeeded Mrs. A. W. Schorger, Madison, as president. Prof. John L. Gillin of Madison was elected vice president; Miss Lucia Clow, Milwaukee, secretary, and Dean F. A. Holt, University of Wisconsin, treasurer.

Among the directors are E. A. Oberweiser, Appleton, formerly of Stevens Point; Mrs. C. B. Clark, Neenah, and Dr. Thomas Barrows, president of Lawrence college, Appleton.

An international conference. Previously they had stressed that Poland was acting independently of the Munich conference which agreed on the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia at Germany's behest.

People on the streets hugged one another for joy.

A huge crowd gathered in the square named for Poland's hero, Joseph Pilsudski, and cheered so much for Foreign Minister Joseph Beck that he was compelled to appear on the foreign office balcony and speak briefly.

Recalling the memory of Pilsudski who, he said, always desired a dignified Poland, he continued: "It is not our nature to harm anyone. But justice and right must be respected."

"An important problem has been solved today. It is not a superficial victory over an adversary of yesterday but a solution of a matter of national importance."

At 4 o'clock p. m. a Czechoslovak general arrived in Polish Teschen to arrange the technical details of tomorrow's transfer.

Deadline At Noon

The "final" note, delivered in Prague just before midnight, was understood to have set noon today (Sat., Oct. 1) as the deadline for fulfilling "just demands" for Teschen Silesia, an area of 77 square miles inhabited by most of Czechoslovakia's 100,000 Poles.

The official government organ, Gazeta Polska, made public three

End of Spanish Civil War May Be Next Goal of Four Major European Nations

Washington—(7)—An end to Spain's bloody civil war, usually well informed persons said today, would be the next goal of the quartet of European powers which worked out a solution for the Czech-German crisis.

In responsible quarters there was some expectation that the powers—England, Germany, Italy and France—would seek to impose a peace in Spain in somewhat the same manner they dictated terms to Czechoslovakia.

Informed persons believe Premier Mussolini may initiate the move for a settlement. Already there have been reports he intends to withdraw his troops. It is believed that he possibly desired to end the war because its continuance prevents his accord with Great Britain, reached last spring, from going into effect.

Joint action by the "big four" would save Mussolini the embarrassment of voluntarily abandoning General Franco, the insurgent leader,

Radio Censorship Question Again Up Before Federal Communications Body

Washington—(7)—The federal communications commission is up in the air again over a question of radio censorship.

This time a complaint that a broadcast of a Eugene O'Neill play contained improper language revived the thorny subject, which a Mae West skit last brought to the forefront.

Mr. and Mrs. George Peterson of Minneapolis objected, Commissioner T. A. M. Craven said, because of O'Neill's Pulitzer-prize play "Beyond the Horizon," broadcast July 28.

Points which it said determined Poland action in forwarding the categorical demand to Prague:

1. "Poland cannot tolerate any longer the shedding of Polish blood in the area."
2. "Poland does not recognize the separation of Europe into countries of second and third classes, and especially will never permit Poland to be treated as a second-class country."
3. "Since Poland was not invited to the Munich conference (at which French, Italian and British statesmen agreed to accede to Adolf Hitler's demands that four districts of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German territory be granted Germany), Poland cannot be bound by decisions of that conference."

New Incidents

A new series of incidents was reported today on the Polish-Czechoslovak frontier by the semi-official Polish telegraph agency.

The agency also issued a communique saying the Polish government was "obliged to draw the consequences and place responsibility on the Czechoslovak side."

A previous Polish note demanded evacuation of Czechoslovak troops from Teschen territory as a condition for negotiations on Polish demands for the same treatment of its minority as Czechoslovakia accorded Sudeten Germans. The Czechoslovaks replied to that note yesterday and Polish government was said to have been amazed that it "dealt only in generalities."

This, they said, was a Prague "maneuver to evade fulfillment of promises."

Settlement Reached in Labor Dispute

Settlement was reached yesterday in an action brought against a group of garage firms of Appleton and nearby cities by the International Association of Machinists, local No. 747, charging the dealers with violating the state labor act. Hearing on the charges opened before Carl March, Madison, of the state labor board, at the courthouse Thursday.

The various dealers named as defendants agreed to put up notices as complying with the labor act for at least 30 days, according to Carl Filter, Madison, counsel for the labor board. It was further agreed, Filter said, that Walter Nowak, who was allegedly discharged for union activities from the August Brandt company, be paid $100 in lieu of reinstatement. He said that Ray Dakin, also allegedly fired for the same reason, be given preference in employment.

The hearing was a result of a strike by mechanics at the garages in June of last year. Settlement was reached after a number of workers and George E. Sande of the Tri-City Motors company gave testimony.

Three-Man Fight For Governorship Due in Wisconsin

Henry Runs as Democrat, Will Not Withdraw in Favor of Heil

Milwaukee—(7)—Post-primary developments gave promise today, even in advance of next Tuesday's three-man fight for the Wisconsin governorship.

Regardless of the programs to be adopted at the Madison meetings, the chief issue of the Republicans and Democrats will be "beat LaFollette" in the November general election.

Governor LaFollette already has taken the stump to meet the attack.

Julius P. Heil, Milwaukee manufacturer and Republican nominee, will launch his campaign at a Waukesha rally next Thursday night.

Robert K. Henry, Jefferson banker and Democratic nominee, has not announced the opening of his campaign drive.

Hoping to be the state's first four-term governor, LaFollette, observing tradition, launched his campaign at Baraboo last Monday. He made it clear he would stand on his record, but was equally emphatic that he harbored no illusions as to the strength of his opposition.

"I would like to make one thing clear to Republicans and Democrats," he said, "and that is that we Progressives know we have a fight on our hands."

Henry Won't Withdraw

Heil supporters said Henry should withdraw, but the latter, pointing out that his combined vote exceeded Heil's, declared he would continue the fight.

Coalition leaders pledged support of Henry at a meeting here Wednesday. There was ample evidence of dissension, however. Some contended Henry should step out "in the spirit of carrying out the coalition program," the chief purpose of which was consolidation of LaFollette's opposition.

Further complicating the fusion set-up was the announcement of Walter S. Goodland of Racine, who won both the Republican and Democratic nominations for lieutenant governor, that he would run on the Republican ticket and support Heil. John M. Smith of Shell Lake, who won both nominations for treasurer, also will run in the Republican column.

There was sentiment among some Republicans for a change in the party's state central committee chairmanship. Alexander J. Wiley, senatorial nominee, was understood to favor William H. Gharity, editor of the Chippewa Falls Herald-Telegram. Heil also was reported to want him.

for the purpose of independent observation, but were assured of an opportunity to see "everything."

Photographers were denied permission to enter the occupied territory.

Newspapermen traveling in private and army automobiles were accompanied by staff officers.

Eger—(7)—Czechoslovak troops and police withdrew today from Egerland—the northwest corner of the Sudeten rim—though under the Munich agreement they were not required to do so until Wednesday.

The German army encamped on the frontier in mobilized divisions refrained, however, from entering the Eger region, the largest ceded at once to Germany under the four-power accord. It was not expected to do so until the appointed date of Oct. 5.

The Sudeten Germans peacefully established a provisional government. In Eger the fire department made up of Sudeten Germans took over the policing of the city, aided by volunteers.

The departure of the Czechoslovaks was orderly. Eger, for months the hot spot of the Sudeten region, was quite calm.

Thousands of Czechoslovak troops entered Eger last night from their military defense lines outside the city and were packed into trains and auto trucks for the eastward retreat.

The few remaining Czech civilians in Eger, mostly government employees, went with the soldiers.

The Sudeten German population warned by its leaders to make no demonstrations, watched the departure with quiet satisfaction.

The Czechoslovak troops took with them all railway rolling stock and all private automobiles commandeered during the general mobilization, possibly to return them to their owners later. There was no looting.

The last bloodshed of the Czechoslovak-Sudeten struggle in the Eger region occurred yesterday just before the Czechoslovaks abandoned the resort town of Franzensbad. Three Czech soldiers and two Sudeten Germans were killed in an exchange of shots.

Stores were open in Eger but the city was cut off from rail, telegraph and telephone service. Money of the Prague government still was in circulation.

German radio officials took possession of the station, which though on Czechoslovak soil is part of the German railways system. They closed the station to the public.

Rohan Says G. O. P. Is Stealing His Thunder

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Assemblyman William Rohan of Kaukauna, long-time Democrat, doesn't like the idea of Republicans going around promising a reduction in the automobile license registration fee. "That was my idea," he said here the other day. Rohan introduced and battled for a $5 fee in the 1937 legislature. If the Republicans adopt the $5 proposal, he remarked, "I may bring it down to $3."

G. O. P. Winners Likely to Adopt Liberal Platform

"Streamline" Statement of Principles Meets Favor With Candidates

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Republican candidates for office this fall, when they meet in Madison next Tuesday to author a platform for their party in Wisconsin, will follow the "streamlined" suggestions enunciated at the state convention in Fond du Lac last summer, they have indicated in the last few days.

Although considerable curiosity exists on the probable tenor of the G. O. P. statement of principles this year—there have been signs that there is a movement for a liberalization of the party in recent months—few concrete suggestions have yet appeared, as far as has been learned.

Several leaders, when questioned here, replied that the party will stick pretty close to the brief declaration adopted by local delegates by voice vote at the Fond du Lac conference. That document roundly abused the New Deal, favored codification of production for Wisconsin farmers, tariff, collective bargaining for labor, elimination of "government meddling in business," reform of the social security laws, conservation legislation, civil service, government economy, reduction in license fees, and improvement in state government through the elimination of patronage.

It seemed likely today that the platform will bulge with denunciations of both Roosevelt and LaFollette, as the result of the influence of the Republicans' two principal candidates, Alexander Wiley and Julius P. Heil. Wiley has steadily campaigned so far this year on an anti-New Deal basis, while Heil has confined his talks largely to the deeds of Governor LaFollette and his administration.

It is interesting to note that the Republicans next Tuesday will have the aid of a Democrat in the drafting of a platform. He is John E. Martin of Milwaukee, and a native of Green Bay, who was nominated for attorney general. He beat Mayor Richard Murray of Marinette for the nomination as the candidate of the Republican-Democratic Coalition.

Firemen Extinguish Roof and Brush Fires

Firemen answered two alarms last night. A small roof fire at the Frank Rohoff home, 529 N. Division street, was put out at 6:34. The blaze started from chimney sparks. The second alarm was to the 10th block on N. Rankin street at 10:25 to put out a brush fire.

Deer Population Heavier Than in Any Recent Year

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—As Wisconsin hunters today were waiting for the seven-day hunting season for forked-horn white-tailed deer, beginning Nov. 19, they were given the pleasant news by Walter E. Scott of the game management division of the state conservation department that the state's deer population is now heavier than it has been in any recent year, and that it is steadily increasing despite the heavy kill in recent open seasons.

Since 1915, when the first one-buck law went into effect, and especially since 1925, when the first closed season in alternate years was established, the white-tailed deer herd has increased steadily, Scott reports. So heavy has been the decrease that deer have been pushed out of regular haunts in the northern counties and into the southern and western parts of the state, where not long ago the species had been extinct.

Various methods are used by the department to establish the status of the deer population. Most reliable, however, is the census drive practiced by department agents on typical sections of land.

Recent Censuses

The most recent census was taken after the 1937 open season, the results of which are now available. The department summarizes its counts as follows: northwestern counties, 34 deer per section; north central counties, 20 deer per section; northwestern counties, 18 deer per section. These figures represent population outside of refuge areas after the shooting season.

Counts in refuge areas, where the deer is protected all year, showed an average of 49 deer per section in the northwestern counties. 57 deer per section in the north central counties. 29 per section in the northeastern counties, and 55 per section in the central counties.

Scott observed that "a comparison of averages shows that the refuge areas after the season had approximately twice as many deer as areas which had been open to hunting; showing that the deer made good use of the protected refuge areas by moving into those regions where they could find protection and quiet. With this summer's fawn crop, better than ever, half again as many deer should be in the field at the present time."

What is called the "better deer country" includes about 6,000,000 acres. Scott pointed out, of which more than 3,300,000 are open to hunting. The total area containing deer is about 10,000,000 acres, he said.

Scott also warned about increasing deer starvation reported for neighboring states. Michigan and Minnesota, and said that "Wisconsin must be blessed with particularly fine deer yards, or else we will have witnessed more serious starvation of deer during this past winter." He also said, however, that "it is easily possible that with the continued increase of our deer, another severe winter will prove very deadly. Such a condition might be particularly severe in certain localities where deer yards have been browsed out and depleted of winter food."

Attitude in U. S. May Change From Peace in Europe

Class Group Friction Has Sapped American Democracy, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE Washington—Peace in Europe may have its repercussions in America in ways wholly unrelated to world disarmament, military power, or international wars, are not the only kinds of friction which produce unrest.

Within the United States, economic forces have been at war. Politicians have capitalized the unrest flowing from economic disturbance. The whole industrial machinery of the country has been retarded by the controversies that have arisen over the share that labor and management and ownership shall respectively derive from the nation's production.

Governmental power has been exercised here in an attempt to bring about a readjustment if not a redistribution of income. Taxation has been used for social purposes irrespective of economic law or effectiveness. Incentive has been interfered with. Production has been irregular and unemployment has been rising and falling with a fluctuation that has caused an unparalleled feeling of insecurity.

Under these circumstances, it would not be unnatural if the coming session of congress brought a new attitude, influenced to no small degree by the sensational example of strong forces abroad, which, rather than come to grips in a suicidal war, allowed the light of reason to play on the scene.

2,643 Requests For PWA Grants

Applications Submitted Before Deadline From 6 East Central States

Chicago—(7)—The regional public works administration office announced today that, when the application deadline expired at midnight, 2,643 requests had been received from six east central states for $304,822,465 in federal grants and $59,451,104 in loans for projects of an estimated $677,956,037 construction cost.

Just before the deadline, 170 applications were received in region two, Illinois led with 77.

The recapitulation on total 1938 PWA applications included:

Illinois, 768 applications, $73,353,328 grants, $12,695,074 loans, $163,005,880 estimated cost.

Indiana, 257 applications, $27,538,734 grants, $1,857,609 loans, $61,283,219 estimated cost.

Wisconsin, 357 applications, $28,186,908 grants, $2,029,886 loans, $62,729,574 estimated cost.

Allotments approved to date were summarized as follows:

Illinois, 255 projects, $1,987,000 in loans, $7,912,776 in grants, $84,324,925 estimated cost.

Indiana, 218 projects, $344,000 in loans, $23,771,089 grants, $52,842,170 estimated cost.

Wisconsin, 243 projects, $133,000 in loans, $19,434,561 grants, $43,195,257 estimated cost.

nizations have become more interested in the accumulation of political and economic power than they have in working out in a cooperative way the problems of capitalism. It may well be that the use of or threat of force seems to them the only way by which attention can be directed to abuses by other groups possessed of wealth and economic power. But should the example of peace made this week abroad resulting in a corresponding respect for the processes of reason in the settlement of controversies in a domestic sense, the effect might be just as tremendous here in forwarding the economic progress of this country as political peace between nations abroad may be in creating stability out of what was only a few days ago a terrible fear of inevitable chaos.

President Roosevelt, like Prime Minister Chamberlain, has the greatest opportunity in his career. He can mediate as between economic forces in America and bring about mutual concessions and mutual sacrifices in the interest of making democracy both efficient and effective.

If the political ambitions of governmental officials could be sidetracked and the greater objectives of domestic security attained, there would be plenty of opportunity in both political parties for rewards to be distributed. For, while the majority party has had the power, the minority party has not had the constructive program which would force the majority to bow to better and more effective solutions. Again, if morality were impressed on the politicians by the demand of an aroused citizenry, it would not be all surprising to see the same challenge to the ingenuity of the leaders of all parties presented so that the competition here would really develop as between rival formulas for the people's benefit, rather than rival schemes for the advancement of individual ambitions.

Board Declares It Has No Use for Lincoln Building

Decision Is Answer to Proposal for Maintaining It as School

Because the school population is growing on the outskirts of the city and decreasing in the second ward, the board of education at Lincoln school last night decided it had no further use for the Lincoln school building in answer to Mayor John Goodland's suggestion that it be used for school purposes instead of converting it into a new city hall.

Mayor Goodland told the building committee of the board at a previous meeting that it is more important to the citizens of Appleton to have Winnebago street paved than to have a new city hall and he is endeavoring to have the EWA project changed to cover the paving work.

The board already has turned the building over to the city but special committees of the board and the council will meet soon to discuss the matter.

Refuse Resignation

The resignation of Joseph Rohr, deaf school teacher, was refused until a suitable substitute can be obtained. Rohr stated he has been selected to direct a $500,000 statewide project for the deaf and wished to be released from his contract.

In rejecting his resignation, board members pointed out an unusual number of late resignations had been received this year and it was imperative to "draw a line someplace." They pointed out the release of qualified teachers to be replaced by substitutes penalized Appleton children and weakened the entire school system.

Things Happen Fast When Hunting Trio Sights Flying Ducks

Seven o'clock, the zero hour for duck hunters, had passed. Three men in plain clothes, the county traffic squad, his brother, Louis, and Robert Hebst, Stephensville, were huddled in the weeds on the Wolf river near Stephensville and craning their necks as they searched the sky for fowl.

Suddenly a few feet ahead of the trio a flock of ducks sailed down to the river.

Charlie, who is used to a pump gun was bearing a double-barreled gun with hammer which he had borrowed from a neighbor. Rob on the other hand had a pump gun whereas he was used to a hammer trigger gun.

In their excitement Charlie was running his hand along the barrel of his gun, feeling for the pump while Rob was trying frantically to pull back hammers that were not there. Charlie's brother, Louis, did manage to let go a blast from his first and second barrels down, wounding Louis picked up a paddle from the boat and in swinging at the bird went splashing overboard into the chilly water.

It is said Charlie shot an entire box of shells without bagging one duck.

Hit, Run Driver Kills Trained Hunting Dog

The duck hunting season opened this morning but for L. J. Stieger, Waupaca county clerk, all the joy of sharing the fun with his dog was gone.

And Brownie was one of the best retrievers in the business, Stieger says. He had reared the dog from a puppy and trained him for six years only to have Brownie cut down in his prime.

It Is Said -

That since the recent heavy rains, Stroebe's Island, which usually isn't an island, has become one. The road leading into the Stroebe property is under three feet of water. Persons going to the island really have to travel in boats to get there.

That when girls' gym classes at the new high school have practiced hockey or soccer in the field across the road from the building for a class period, the gym teachers sometimes discuss them with this command: "Run once around the big mud puddle and then back to school." Once the command was to run around the track, which shows what two weeks of rain can do.

Cheney Admits He Sold Unregistered, Prohibited Stock

Securities Dealer Blames His Employees for His Difficulties

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Marshall C. Cheney, Appleton and Fox River Valley securities dealer, admitted at a hearing before the state banking commission Friday afternoon that he failed to report stock sales as principal, that he failed to report excess profits on stock transactions, and that he has sold various issues of unregistered and prohibited stocks in Appleton and vicinity.

The banking commission's hearing was on an order suspending Cheney's securities dealer's license, made last Saturday. A final decision on the order will be made next week, banking commission officials said at the conclusion of the hearing.

Testimony on the sales of securities unregistered for sale in the state, and Cheney's failure to report various details of his business as required by law and orders of the state securities division, was made by J. Dean Gannon, examiner for the securities division of the banking commission.

Cheney appeared at the hearing without counsel, and spoke in his own defense.

Blames Employees

To the testimony that he has sold various issues of unregistered stocks, and his alleged failure to report profits in excess of five points of market value or 10 per cent of market price, and his alleged failure to make the required reports of stock sales as principal to private investors, Cheney said: "I left it all to my help. I assumed it was all there."

Cheney also declared that about half of the sales of unregistered stocks which Gannon charged, his firm were made by one of his salesmen, H. M. Brehm, Hortonville, whose territory, he said, embraced the smaller communities in Outagamie county and surrounding counties, such as Fremont, Hilbert, New London.

Unregistered stocks which Gannon said Cheney and his agents sold included Missouri-Kansas Pipe line, Arnold Print Works, Florida Portland Cement, Hotel St. George, Philadelphia company, and others.

Cheney admitted that the excess profits reports as required by the banking commission monthly were only omitted for the sale of unregistered securities. Other excess profits reports were shown in the reports filed with the commission, testimony indicated. Asked about this by Gregory Buenzle, securities division chief, Cheney blamed "the girl in my office."

Hired Accountant

Cheney, discussing the variance between the examiner's report and his own statement of condition, explained that he had hired an accountant from Milwaukee to file the statement and to audit his books. "I accepted it as a true statement of affairs. I didn't know. It was submitted by me, but not prepared by me," he said.

Questioned about the pledging of his customers' securities as collateral for bank loans—which Cheney said was necessitated by his lack of working capital—the Appleton dealer said that those customers who loaned him stocks knew that they were to be used as collateral although the receipt he furnished didn't specify the use to which they were to be put.

Financially attributed a part of his financial difficulty to heavy personal expenses, including the support of his mother, and surgical and medical care for members of his wife's family.

He said he fixed no regular salary for himself, but that he drew money whenever he needed it.

At the morning hearing Cheney asked the commission to lift its suspension order for 30 days to allow him to organize a company and to "put his house in order." He already has stock subscription contracts for the new corporate setup, he said, and can pay off his obligations and retire a preferred stock issue within two years.

Excavation Is Started for $10,000 Structure at St. Joseph Cemetery

Excavation for the foundation of a $10,000 chapel and receiving vault has been started at St. Joseph cemetery, according to Frank Groh, chairman of St. Joseph cemetery.

Groh said the building will be completed and will be ready for use about Dec. 10. Raymond N. LeVe, E. College avenue, is the architect.

When the building is completed, all grave services for persons to be buried in St. Joseph cemetery will be held in the chapel and the caskets will be stored in the basement to await burial.

The building will face west and is being erected at the east end of the cemetery. It will be a one-story structure with a basement and will be 55 feet long and 22 feet wide. In the basement will be room to store about 40 caskets. A lift will be installed in the chapel floor to lower caskets to the basement.

The chapel will have a concrete foundation and stone veneer walls. The roof will be of asbestos shingles and terrazzo floors will be installed.

Groh said the new structure will do away with grave services outside in cold winter weather and when it is raining.

Expand Student Activities Plan

All Pupils Participating In Extra-Curricular Events Must Join

New London—Extension of the Student Activity plan at Washington High school whereby all students participating in any of nineteen extra-curricular athletics and activities including variety football and basketball, are required to become members, was announced yesterday by H. H. Helms, superintendent of schools.

Membership consists in the purchase of a Student Activity ticket for 75 cents a semester, which admits the holder to all school athletic contests, programs and parties, and entitled the student to participation in any extra-curricular activity.

Expansion of student after-school activities and the resulting increase in expenses has made the more stringent requirements necessary, Mr. Helms explained. Membership has been optional since the plan was introduced in 1935-1936 though the great majority of students took advantage of the savings offered.

The funds derived from the tickets support the following activities and admit members as active participants or spectators: boys and girls intra-mural athletics, football, basketball, track, band, orchestra, glee club, mixed chorus, Thespian and Thespian plays, Future Farmer activities, Home Economics club, Camera club, Pep club, school parties, school plays, forensic events, debate, School Daze publication, special assembly programs.

Classes are sponsored by the University of Wisconsin department in cooperation with New London organized labor. The study program is open to the general public.

E. N. Catef, high school economics instructor, will conduct the classes again this year. Subjects to be undertaken will be determined by the class at its first meeting Wednesday evening.

High School Boys Learn Tricks of Home Cooking

New London—To learn to cook their own meals and to keep their own home is the aim of 16 boys at Washington High school, and they seem to find the learning fascinating in a special home economics class inaugurated this year at the high school under the direction of Miss Mabel Nock.

The boys have been studying nutrition and meal planning and Thursday and Friday they served their first full breakfast. It will be some time before they prepare a complete dinner but oatmeal with marshmallows, cream of wheat with dates, bacon and eggs, and first rate muffins with coffee or cocoa are a fair dish for breakfast. The group served such a morning meal Thursday with Superintendent H. H. Helms and a business caller as guests.

In the course, the boys will study etiquette, cooking, home development, clothing, and how to shop properly for food and goods. The class is divided into families of four and two families alternately serve the others.

Same Inventions That Aid War are Used to Mobilize Forces of Peace

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—As if some silent law of compensation were at work, the same science which has made war more horrible also has provided new facilities for peace-making.

If scientific invention has made it possible for Hitler to strike with terrifying destruction simultaneously in Prague, Paris and London, scientific invention also has made it possible for the forces of peace to be mobilized instantly in many capitals of the world for a concentrated move on Hitler.

In the sudden and apparently successful conference at Munich, we have seen those forces of peace beat the weapons of war to the draw, thanks to the radio, the long distance and trans-atlantic telephone, and to the very airplane invention which in its military application has provided such a deadly weapon.

Events have happened so swiftly that they appear to have moved with magic spontaneity. But radio and telephone engineers and operators, and a whole army of technicians, through whose controls these history-making conversations passed, could tell you differently. These events did not happen. They were brought about.

For instance, Tuesday forenoon, Chamberlain's aide, Sir Horace Wilson, saw Hitler in Berlin. In a last plea, Hitler told him it was no use. Unless Czechoslovakia surrendered at once, he was prepared to send his army across the frontier at 2 p. m. the next day. Sir Horace flew at once to London, arriving with his gloomy message in mid-afternoon—which was still early morning in Washington.

Within a few minutes—not hours, but minutes—Secretary of State Hull and President Roosevelt knew that Hitler had moved up his deadline so that it was only 24 hours away.

All that occurred in the next few hours of furious activity will not be known until the various participants publish their memoirs. We know that Washington was in communication with various capitals—Moscow, Tokyo, Rome, several in Latin-America, and of course with London and Paris. Roosevelt, Hull and Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles were working on the second peace plea to Hitler, proposing a peace conference at some neutral place—a proposal purposefully kept as vague as possible.

For fear of causing a backfire from isolationists here at home, Mobilized Pressure To Beat Marching Deadline

London and Paris were at work by long-distance telephone, as probably other capitals were also during the afternoon and evening. Roosevelt's second peace plea was cabled to Hitler about 10 p. m. that night, culminating several hours of world-wide backstage activity. The various capitals were in a race with time to mobilize their concentrated pressure on Hitler before, not after, his armies crossed the Czech frontier.

Within a few hours, the pressure brought results. Hitler postponed his invasion and asked for a four-power conference at Munich. Twenty-four hours later the big four had assembled there, coming from London, Paris, Rome and Berlin, the most quickly organized peace conference in history perhaps.

It was a victory against time, not only for the quick-thinking statesmen who participated but for the telephones, radios and airplanes without which they could not have acted so quickly. And behind all of this was the massive world-wide public opinion against war, more thoroughly informed this time, swelling up through every channel of communication, private and public and providing the motive power that drove the statesmen to the last ounce of their power.

Science, Like Rain, Falls Alike On All

In General Andrew Jackson's time, war was simpler and less destructive and he fought the battle of New Orleans without the efficient modern weapons of death. Yet he was fighting a war that was already over and he didn't know it. The treaty of Ghent, ending the War of 1812, had been signed 15 days before, but there was no way to let Jackson know.

So if the modern mechanized army has vastly greater striking power than has ever been seen before, we have seen also the mobilization in short order of a peace force, which in its quick striking power is far beyond anything that was previously possible. The advantages of science, like the rain, fall alike on the just and the unjust, and in all of man's aggressive ingenuity there seems to intervene the inscrutable hand that keeps nature in balance.

Limberlost Story Will Open Monday

Elite to Show Screen Version of Tale by Gene Stratton Porter

America's best loved folk romance comes to the screen once more in Monogram's dramatic picture of a story suggested by Gene Stratton Porter's "Girl of the Limberlost," showing at the Elite Theatre Monday and Tuesday, Bargain Days. The title of the picture, which stars Jean Parker and Eric Linden, is "Romance of the Limberlost," and it is a brilliant follow up to the "Limberlost" picture which Monogram filmed so successfully several years ago.

The Limberlost, well known in American song and story, is a ninety five square mile swamp infested area covering a part of southern Indiana. On the fringes of the swamp, and earning a meagre livelihood from it, are the "swampers," miserable specimens of humanity as much a product of heredity and environment as the "poor whites" or "Crackers" of Georgia.

"Romance of the Limberlost" is a simple picture, but an eloquent one. In strong, moving strokes, it paints the beauty of common things, and the nobility of common lives.

Jean Parker, as Laurie, has a role particularly suited to her fragile loveliness, and one which is an excellent vehicle for the emotional quality in her acting which makes her dramatic scenes so intense and so real.

A powerful performance is that of Marjorie Main, whose Nora—crucel, bitter, frustrated—is yet sympathetic enough to make believable her final regeneration. Edward Pawley too, as Corson, gives a strong portrait of the drunken bully who ruled the swampers through fear.

Eric Linden is fine as Wayne, bringing out all the idealism in this character, and others excellent in smaller roles include Betty Blythe, as the Bird Woman, George Cleveland, and Hollis Jewell as Chris.

'Hold That Co-ed' to Be Shown at Appleton

The showman fashion in medicine—electroshock methods comes in for some uproarious ribbing in the football comedy, "Hold That Co-ed," which opens at the Appleton theater Saturday, Oct. 8. Half satire, half farce, and all fun, the picture proceeds merrily on the theory that if circus tactics can win votes (as they seem to be doing nowadays), then a winning college football team could accomplish miracles at the polls for any political candidate clever enough to turn it to his own personal glory. It's a highly amusing idea, and from all advance reports it would seem that the producers have taken full advantage of its entertainment possibilities.

"We've cast John Barrymore as the demagogic governor," says Associate Producer David Hempstead, "and it proved to be his best role since 'Hamlet.'" He's even better as a comedian, than he was as a tragedian—and you know he's supposed to have been our greatest unhappy Dane.

"Then, for romance, we've teamed George Murphy and Marjorie Weaver, as bright a personality pair as I've ever seen."

"Joan Davis plays the world's only female fullback and she too has her romance, with none other than poyeyed Jack Haley!"

"For those who take their football seriously there are many exciting gridiron sequences, sensationally photographed. But I'm sure the serious grid fans will join with everyone else in enjoying the hilarious manner in which Joan wins 'The Big Game'."

Few new swing hits highlight the film. These are "All American Swing," "Hold That Co-ed" and "Here Am I Doing It."

"Hold That Co-ed" is one of the Movie Quiz $250,000 contest pictures.

The second feature on this program is "Juvenile Court." This picture exposes boys' life in the big city's slums.

Paul Kelly and Rita Hayworth are featured with such young players as Frankie Darro, David Gorcey, Halley Chester, Don Latorre, Dick Ellis and Allan Ramsey.

'Law of Plains' Heads Attractions at Elite

A lone cowboy's efforts to rid a western community of its lawless elements and, at the same time, to solve a mystery of many years standing, supply the motivation for Columbia's "Law of the Plains." The film, which heads a big 5 unit program at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday, stars Charles Starrett.

As in previous Charles Starrett pictures, a group of new western songs and range ballads are introduced. Featured in the supporting cast of "Law of the Plains" in addition to Miss Meredith, are Bob Nolan, Dick Curtis, Ed Le Saint, George Chesbro, Edward Cobb, Art Mix, Johnnie Tyrrell, the Sons of the Pioneers and Robert Warwick.

Starrett is seen as a ranch foreman who takes matters into his own hands when his boss is first beaten up and then robbed. Miss Meredith is cast as the adopted daughter of a respectable banker, actually the brains behind the outlaws.

IN CAST OF 'FOUR DAUGHTERS'

Two stars are born when Priscilla Lane and John Garfield appear in the Warner Bros. picture, "Four Daughters," one of the outstanding pictures of "motion picture's greatest year," and scheduled to be shown at the Rio theater starting next Friday.

What happens when four devoted sisters all fall in love with the same man? The man in the case is Jeffrey Lynn, one of the screen's newest and most handsome leading men, who makes it quite believable that four girls would fall headlong under the spell of his charm. An unusual bit of casting places the three Lane sisters—Priscilla, Rosemary and Lola—in the roles of screen sisters, with Gale Page, a dark-haired beauty recently come to the screen, making a fourth.

Co-featured on the same program is "The Affairs of Annabel," with Jack Oakie starred.

It's People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — Mutterings: I'd like to take a healthy look at the strip-teasers who park on the corner of Hollywood and Vine and comment on all the girls who pass. Imaginable hilarious evening, to hold a W. C. T. U. convention in Bill Field's dressing room — and serve lemonade. My ardent admiration for Olivia de Havilland doesn't include that posey smile she wears in all her still photographs. Silly notions: to test Oliver Hardy's pomposity—with a tire gauge.

Hugh Herbert's impersonation of Louise Rainer is funny but blood feud have been started by less. Secret ambition: to tour Main Street's burlesque houses with Mae West for my mentor. If only Betty Grable's face were as expressive as her curves, what a star she would be! Ode to Mayhem: to let off a Billy Gilbert sneeze just as Bing Crosby starts to stroke a putt. Why not stage a contest between Sam Goldwyn, Maxie Rosenbloom and Director Mike Curtiz and settle Hollywood's ungrammatical championship once and for all.

Nervous itch: to curl Vic McLaglen's hair while he naps before Dietrich to reverse the prizefighter's common ailment—instead of her legs going back on her, she went back on her legs. Hit and run idea: to remind Ben Alexander that he made his first screen appearance as Cupid in a Fanny Ward pulsator. The fact that our extras seem a bit thicker-skinned this year than usual is not a sure sign we're in for a hard winter.

On the sixteenth fairway at the golf club this morning appeared a strange procession—a publicity man, two still photographers, a dog trainer, Janet Gaynor and Buck, the gigantic St. Bernard that played in "Call of the Wild." I stuck around to watch developments, and had to admit the idea was excellent. Big dog caddy for little girl—sure fire human interest. But the dog was too big and the girl too little. Whenever a camera was pointed in his direction Buck decided to pose with his paws on Janet's shoulders. And

John Garfield — veteran of the Broadway stage at twenty-five—is a newcomer in motion pictures. Born in New York, he was educated in grade and high, took part in all school plays and landed his first professional Broadway stage role when he was fifteen. The play was "Lost Boy" and since then he has appeared in eight other plays. He was in Clifford Odets' "Golden Boy" when the Warner Bros. scout saw him and started him on the way to the long term contract which he now has. Since he has never acted or traveled outside of New York his Hollywood experience was on the order of a lark to him. He makes his screen debut in "Four Daughters."

whenever he did Janet sat down, suddenly and completely. When I left they were still trying to educate Buck and to soothe the ruffled dignity of a very impatient star.

Hollywood Lullaby: Kept late at an American Legion affair, Shirley Temple was rushed home by a police escort—waving through traffic at sixty miles an hour. Mrs. Temple didn't want her to miss her sleep.

Had lunch with Anita Louise who spent dessert-time telling me about some of her experiences with fortune tellers. And I was reminded of the time that I persuaded one of our most famous mystics, Nerval, to make a few predictions. He told me (1) that Jeanette MacDonald then apparently through in pictures, would return and make a great hit in musicals, (2) that Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, then our happiest couple, would divorce and (3) that Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller were not destined for a life of bliss. I've never sneered at fortune-telling since.

Four months ago when John Garfield, a complete unknown to Hollywood, was enroute here to make his first picture, he met Bob Barry, for who was returning to the coast on the same train. Yesterday, Garfield received a telegram from Bob, congratulating him on his brilliant hit in "Four Daughters." Obviously, there would be nothing to write about in such an event, for congratulatory telegrams are so common here that some stars have been suspected of self-addressing them. But this telegram opened with a strange preface. It read: "I don't suppose you remember me, but I met you on the train."

It appears that our next fad will be tattooing. I hear that Geraldine

Ritz Brothers in Show at Appleton

Race Track Comedy Picture Based on Story By Damon Runyon

Damon has those Ritzes on the Runyon! In other, and more sober, words, this means that the daffy Ritz Brothers are starred in Damon Runyon's "Straight, Place and Show," which is now showing for 4 days at the Appleton Theatre.

The film shows the Ritzes off (as usual) to the races, where they buy horses, sell horses, rent horses, steal horses—in fact they're a little hoarse themselves before the story reaches its 149th, and final, climax of laughter. Based on a play by Damon Runyon and Irving Caesar, the comic story is spiced by a romantic triangle between Richard Arlen, Ethel Merman and Phyllis Brooks.

The Ritzes play a trio of down-and-out pony track operators thrust into big-time racing when Richard Arlen bestows a thoroughbred on them. In characteristic fashion they build the story up to a series of hilarious high spots topped by their taking to ride the competing horses in a race so that their own entry can win.

The handsome Richard plays the ope of an attractive triangle—Ethel Merman keeps singing her songs to Dick and they keep reminding him of Phyllis Brooks! Richard Arlen plays the role of a millionaire sportsman in this picture. He is engaged to Phyllis Brooks, who is such a rabid horse-fancier that Dick plays second-fiddle to her stable pets. Exasperated by this state of affairs, he offers his fiancée a wager. If her favorite mount, Playboy, wins no race within three months, she must give up horses. If he does win, then, says Dick, "I will build a stable off the bedroom."

Playboy loses; and here is where the Ritzes come in.

David Butler directed the film under the supervision of Darryl F. Zanuck. It is the latest of the Movie Quiz $250,000 contest pictures.

The second feature on this program is the "Mysterious Mr. Moto" with Peter Lorre, Mary Maguire, and Henry Wilcoxon. This is also a movie quiz show.

He's very amiable, very well-mannered—and so socially acceptable because of his graces. But he doesn't get much work. While we chatted, a waiter passed with a tray of hors d'oeuvres, and the boy turned pale. It's too much for me," he murmured. ## HEAD CAST OF 'HOLD THAT CO-ED'

Sparkling, larking college youth rallies 'round for a vote-chasing, co-ed-kissing governor in the new comedy, "Hold That Co-ed," opening October 8th at the Appleton Theatre. Above, John Barrymore, as the hilarious governor, watches the Big Game with Marjorie Weaver and George Murphy. Other notables in the cast are Joan Davis, Jack Haley, George Barbier, Ruth Terry, Donald Meek and Johnny Downs.

'Campus Confessions' Tops Mid-Week Bill

A quartette of happy-go-lucky youngsters—luscious Betty Grable, gorgeous Eleanor Whitney, handsome William Henry and famed Hank Luisetti, Stanford University basketball star rated the greatest player the game has ever known, will be seen in action in Paramount's new college romance, "Campus Confessions," which heads the mid-week program at the Rio theater on Wednesday and Thursday.

"Campus Confessions," the first motion picture to introduce basketball to the screen, is the fast-moving tale of a youngster anxious to be liked by his fellow-students at college, but who is terribly handicapped by his unfortunate possession of too much money, which instinctively makes them draw back.

The young millionaire, played by William Henry, desperate because of his lack of success in making of his fortune, finally hits on the idea of showing that he is a good sport on the sports field. He goes out for the basketball squad, makes it, and under the tutelage of Hank Luisetti, develops into a star.

The romance angles of the film, in the capable hands of Betty Grable and Eleanor Whitney, are believable and pleasing, and the sports scenes on the basketball field are thrilling and novel. The "big game" shown in the film is a re-enactment of the famous Stanford-U. S. C. game of 1937, rated by experts as the most thrilling and most perfect exhibition of basketball on record.

The story of "Tenth Avenue Kid," which is the added feature on the program, is one of the most compelling dramas to come out of Hollywood during the current season. It has everything that a movie audience could want in the way of entertainment. Pathos, comedy, action, heart interest, and stark realism are interwoven in such a way that suspense and interest are held to the final fade out.

Bruce Cabot is starred as a hard-boiled police detective. Beverly Roberts plays opposite him in the role of a newspaper-woman. Tommy Ryan, a newcomer to the screen is excellent in the part of a young boy who is saved from a life of crime by Cabot.

Astaire, Rogers In Picture at Rio

Four Irving Berlin Songs Are Included in 'Carefree'

Bringing the world-famous team of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers together once more, "Carefree" presents a glittering, joyous and song-studded film romance embellished with Irving Berlin melodies, startling dance routines and a deftly-handled story. The picture is the current attraction at the Rio theater where it will be shown thru Tuesday.

The brilliant supporting cast is headed by Luella Gear, noted Broadway comedienne, and Jack Carson, hailed as the comedy "discovery" of the year, along with Clarence Kolb and Franklin Pangborn. Four of Irving Berlin's catchiest tunes, "The Night Is Filled With Music," "I Used to Be Color Blind," "The Yam" and "Change Partners" are featured in the picture, and all four are in the top rank of popularity in the nation's song lists.

The dance numbers of "Carefree," following the Astaire-Rogers tradition of introductory spectacular routines into their vehicles, are unusually diversified. They include the Golf Dance, a solo novelty by Astaire; the "Change Partners" routine, a sensational romantic ballroom dance; a dream fantasy number, and "The Yam," a colorful but simple ballroom routine, the first dance the two stars have ever presented which can without revision, be performed by the general public, and which has caught on widely.

Flavored with high-speed humor and side-splitting situations, "The Affairs of Annabel" is the co-feature on the same program, with Jack Oakie and Lucille Ball co-starring.

Perfectly suited to the mirth-making talents of its two stars, "The Affairs of Annabel" provides a wealth of entertainment and as well affords interesting, behind-the-scenes action on producing pictures and their subsequent ballyhoo.

Supporting players headed by Ruth Donnelly, Bradley Page, Fritz Feld, Thurston Hall and Elizabeth Risdon add to the mirth and excitement of the film.

Labor Relations Board Member in Talk to Lawyers

Winnebago County Bar Group Hears Nathan Feinsinger

Neenah — Determining whether an employer or a union refused to bargain in a labor dispute is the problem facing the labor relations board, Nathan Feinsinger, a member of the board and a member of the Wisconsin university law school, explained to the Winnebago County Bar association at a noon luncheon Friday at the Valley Inn.

"If two parties are trying to reach an agreement, it is said, they will reach it," Feinsinger told the county attorneys. In bargaining, it doesn't mean that an agreement has to be reached or that one of the two parties has to accept the terms offered, but neither the employer nor the union can refuse to meet and both must show good faith in the bargaining agents. They must make an attempt to reconcile the differences and reach an agreement. The presumption will be against the employer if the union is acting in good faith, and vice versa."

Feinsinger said that the greatest difficulty for the board to overcome is to determine whether an employer hires, fires, lays off or demotes employees on the basis of their union affiliations.

The mediator outlined the theory and history of the labor relations act.

The United States supreme court has said that violent resistance of labor union results in racketeering getting control, the mediator stated.

Seven Sections

There are seven sections covering the labor relations act, he pointed out, and the first is the most inclusive and covers the other six. It prevents interference against the right of establishing unions as a bargaining power. The second forbids formation of company unions, while the third prohibits hiring, firing laying off or demoting employees on the basis of union affiliations.

The fourth forbids disciplining an employee for taking part in labor hearings, while the fifth forbids refusal to bargain. The sixth and seventh prohibit spying and black-listing.

The lawyer also pointed out that the state act permits an employer to make a closed shop and can compel his men to join a union.

Few employers resist the laws providing the right of forming union and they will recognize them as legal bargaining agents, he pointed out.

He warned the attorneys as to the extent in which they should participate in the process of bargaining negotiations. He urged that the lawyers suggest to the employers and unions that they appoint a bargaining committee and that the attorneys sit in only as legal adviser.

Last Novel of Edith Wharton Among 14 New Books at Menasha Library

Menasha — "The Buccaneers," last novel of the late Edith Wharton, is among the 14 new books released for circulation this week at Editha D. Smith library. Critics agree that the book represents the author at her literary best. Although the book was not quite finished at the time of her death, her own complete sketch of the plot with a commentary by her literary executor has been included in the book.

Among the new fiction released this week is "Dynasty of Death" by Taylor Caldwell, the story of Barbour and Bouchard, wholesalers in war materials, a dynasty fated to add a new dimension to history molded by the colossal power of a great corporation. The author states that the story is entirely fictitious with the exception of obviously historical figures.

Other new fiction includes "Smouldering Fire" by D. E. Stevenson, a concoction of love, mystery and humor; "Towers in the Mist" by Elizabeth Goudge, a story of England in the time of Queen Elizabeth and Sir Walter Raleigh; Harold Sinclair's novel, "American Years," a chronicle of 30 years in a small Illinois town, and "All the Year Round" by Dorothy Aldis.

Two Travel Books — In the travel field are two books. "We Married an Englishman" by Ruth and Helen Hoffman. Ruth married the Englishman who lived in Iraq and her twin sister, Helen, went along to live in that strange and amusing land, reported to be the site of the Garden of Eden.

Dana Lamb, co-author with June Cleveland of "Enchanted Vagabonds" is the grand nephew of Richard Dana whose "Three Years Before the Mast" delighted an earlier generation of adventure-lovers. The book is the story of a 16,000 mile cruise from San Diego to Panama.

"The Costume Book" by Joseph Leeming will be found useful, as it is a brief but fully illustrated text on the costumes of 27 different nations, nine historical periods and a number of fancy dress costumes from fairy godmother to Captain Kidd.

In the field of biography and autobiography are three books. "The Horse and Buggy Doctor" is the reminiscence of Dr. Arthur E. Hertzler who began his career 40 years ago in Kansas with the most primitive equipment, including a Colt "peacemaker" for warding off wild dogs.

"Sailor on Horseback" by Irving Stone is the story of Jack London, world-famous novelist and adventurer, whose life was more fantastic than any of his novels. Margaret Armstrong gives a picture of the life of the English born actress whose "Georgia Journal" is credited with having had influence in preventing England from espousing the Southern cause in the Civil war in a new book, "Fanny Kemble, Passionate Victorian."

From the columns of the New Yorker has been gleaned volume of rib-tickling episodes from the adventures of Ruth and Eileen McKenny, written by Ruth and titled "My Sister Eileen."

Gene Laux, Reuben Pruniski and Gilbert Wagner are on the injured list but probably will see action. William Coenen, end, is the only player who probably will not be able to play at least part of the game.

The game emphasizes passing and open field running. The players wear rubber soled shoes instead of football cleats. In addition the team must advance the ball 15 yards in four downs instead of 10 as in the regular game. The man receiving the ball from center cannot run with it but must first pass either forward or laterally, emphasizing the type of game.

London Woman Relates Experiences in India

Neenah — Experiences in India as general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. and her travels around the world were told by Mrs. Charles de J. Luxmore, O. B. E., London, England, to more than 60 members and friends of the Neenah-Menasha Y. W. C. A. last night. Mrs. Luxmore is in the United States to attend a series of meetings in connection with the world organization of the Y. W. C. A.

One of the features of her talk included a large chain on which tokens from 36 countries she had visited were attached. The first token was acquired in Norway, while the others came from Bulgaria, Finland, Austria, Syria, Poland, Germany, Egypt, Sweden, Austria, Persia, China, Hungary, Italy, Greece, Scotland, Turkey, England, Denmark, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Burma, Malaya, Ceylon, India, Korea, New Zealand, France, Latvia, Africa, Palestine, Rumania, Hungary, and the United States.

The token from the United States was a miniature statue of liberty, a Girl Reserve ring and an Indian relic. "Each token," she said, "represents an adventure, and the traveler related the histories or incidents in procuring them."

Doing War Work

"I had the unique experience of being in Persia at the time the women began to appear in public unveiled," she related. She told the Twin City women that the Y. W. C. A. organizations in China and Japan are giving "their undivided efforts to war work. When I attended the world's council meeting in Canada this month, the meeting originally being scheduled for Hongkong but was changed because of European war threats, 29 countries were represented, and at the national banquet each representative wore their national uniform."

"At the time when practically all of the delegates left Europe, the Czechoslovakian trouble had not developed, and at the world meeting, all the representatives from the countries involved were in one room, listening to the radio reports of the war threats, but war was far from their minds and their hearts as they sat in the meeting the purpose of which was peace and good will."

She recalled a brief statement made by the woman from Czechoslovakia. "As a member of this group during the past few days, I have felt that I was among friends and that in trouble a friend always knew what to do."

Carries Pistol

Mrs. Luxmore also stressed the fine work done for the business girls in Greece, the cooperation of Queen Marie in Rumania and the missionary work in the United States.

The traveler said that she married an English soldier stationed in India whose duties included traveling through sparsely settled areas. She said she was the first foreign student to come to America to be trained in Y. W. C. A. work and that Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Appleton, was her teacher. Traveling considerably during the last few years, Mrs. Luxmore recalled having to carry a pistol for protection many times.

Mussolini Lacks a Good Slogan for Going to War

New York — Will Rogers used to say that this country couldn't go to war just now "because we haven't got a slogan." And for all Mussolini's talk of going to war for Germany, he finds himself in a similar fix. Mussolini hasn't even the shadow of a grievance or a cause to offer the Italian people, who when the cheering dies down, would have to do the suffering and dying in person. There are no Sudeten Italians, and all the Italians who once clamored for Anschluss with Italy were rescued after 1918.

Nobody has been bending the Italian frontiers anywhere, and, indeed, the object of the alteration or correction of frontiers should be particularly touching to Italians in view of the fact that their frontiers now inclose territory which, in any readjustment consistent with the principles which the duce recently flung at Czechoslovakia, would be ceded back to the rightful owners. Both the duce and Hitler have conspicuously avoided mention of the God-created Germans who have known the true meaning of persecution under Mussolini in the captured Tyrol, and Mussolini, in the press of bigger considerations, has had nothing to say about his captured Yugoslavs and his captive Greeks in the Dodecanese islands.

Mussolini always had made it plain that Italy, in war, has renounced her amateur standing. His main complaint against Britain and France has been that they gyped Italy of her fair share of the purse for the last World war, and he was again frankly professional when he went into Ethiopia. In the World war the spirit of the Italian people was nourished on the cause of their persecuted brothers in the lost provinces, and for the Ethiopian campaign they were fattened up on promises of milk and honey with a tasty side dish of vindication for a humiliating licking at Adowa, where a lot of wild men, with thumbs on their feet, fell on a whole division of Italy's finest and slaughtered them.

The Legion in Spain Haven't Done So Well

It was noticed that when the duce sent his invincible legions to Spain to fight a people for whom they had no racial, traditional or even neighborly grudge they were not able to arouse the proper spirit. Indeed, the invincible legions came to be spoken of as the invisible legions, and far from burningish the golden eagle on the duce's hat, they contributed to the vocabulary of sure-fire insults against the noisy pride of fascism a word of painful humiliation meaning—Gwaddi ajara. The golden eagle became, in the eyes of the soldiers of the world, a tarnished brass buzzard, and all because Mussolini had neglected the first essential of war. He didn't give his invincible legions anything to be sore about or even anything to make them think they were sore.

The Spaniards were not tampering with Italy's frontiers. There were no persecuted Italians in Spain. And, out of political delicacy, the duce was unable to offer them even the sordid profit motive. He didn't dare tell them that they were fighting for a piece of Spain, because that would have turned even the Spanish rebels against them. So, altogether, what he did was drop a lot of ordinary week-end militia into a real war where they had neither a grievance for a

Mrs. Roosevelt to Give Peace Talk at Green Bay

THERE are very definite indications already that Green Bay will be Mecca on Thursday, Oct. 20 for thousands of visitors from many parts of Wisconsin and from upper Michigan attracted here by another event of magnitude which will be exclusive in this part of the country. That day from her arrival in the afternoon until her departure, America's first lady, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the magnet that will attract these many to this city. Appleton women are cooperating with the Green Bay committee in supporting this project.

Eleanor Roosevelt, undoubtedly one of the most remarkable women in the world today, a dynamic personality and an indefatigable person, will deliver an address in Columbus auditorium that night. Green Bay is one of ten cities, from coast to coast, to which the first lady's 1938 lecture tour will take her. The tour will bring in several thousand dollars but none of it will be received, seen nor handled by Mrs. Roosevelt. Her professional appearances are all made in behalf of her favorite national charities.

Planned For Visit

It is as the wife of the president of the United States that Mrs. Roosevelt comes to Green Bay and operates of the United States Secret Service will not only accompany her but precede her arrival here by several days. It is only four years ago this summer that the city literally swarmed with these government men who are assigned to protect the lives of the president and the members of his family. At that time Green Bay hoped and even did some preparation for entertaining the wife of the president as she was a member of the presidential party en route to the Green Bay and Wisconsin's Tenthennial from the west coast. The president was returning from Hawaii to Washington. But at Minneapolis, Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss LeHand, her secretary continued on by regular train to the capital and the official party including the president, his son John, the late Admiral Grayson, the late Colonel Louis McIntire, Secretary of Commerce Roper, Secretary of War Dern, naval and military aides and other notables swung over to Rochester and to Green Bay and then directly to Washington.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's Wisconsin address at Green Bay were placed on sale this week in thirty localities. The fact that these tickets were sold out entirely in one or two days in about half of these places leads the local committee of the sponsoring Brown County Teachers' federation to anticipate a lot of one-way traffic — toward Green Bay — on Oct. 20. Tickets are available in Appleton at Belings and Unmuth's pharmacies.

Although Mrs. Roosevelt's address is the high light of Green Bay's celebration of "Peace Week" and her national lecture tour subject is "Peace," this independent and unpredictable personality never speaks from manuscript and seldom repeats any prepared lecture in entirety. She is known to improvise and to polish her remarks with sparkling wit and brilliant observations of the current scene.

The lecture set-up at the auditorium provides for 2,300 seats and a full one-half of these are already distributed to local chairmen in every city in the Eighth congressional district.

Appleton Begins Its Busiest Month Since Last Spring

Football, Concerts, Conventions, Social Events On October Calendar

With football games, concerts, political campaign speeches, distinguished lectures, conventions, banquets and Halloween parties on October's calendar, Appleton is beginning today its busiest month since last spring. Every organization that did not start meeting in September will begin this month, and there are a number of functions, the first of which is the all-college dance tonight, to swell the list of events.

The Y. M. C. A. membership drive will open Monday and continue through Oct. 10, with a quota of 1,200 members and $15,000 as its goal. Monday is also the date of the opening of the Appleton Contract Bridge association's annual tournament, to be played at the Elks club. On the same night the auxiliary to the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce will hear Harris Gibout, Green Bay, interior decorator, speak at a dinner meeting at the Candle Glow Tea room.

Tuesday, Oct. 4, is the date of the Ninth district fall conference of the American Legion auxiliary, to be held in Appleton at the Legion clubhouse. Another war veterans auxiliary convention in Appleton this month is that of District No. 3 of the Spanish War Veterans auxiliary, to be held Oct. 13.

Day of Atonement
To the Jews of the community Wednesday, Oct. 5, is the most important day of the month. They will observe Yom Kippur, or the day of atonement, the most sacred day of the Jewish religious calendar.

On the same day the Service circle of the Kings Daughters will sponsor its first benefit project of the season, a style show and card party at the Pettibone-Peabody store. To the men of the city, the day is important for an entirely different reason, the opening of the World series.

On Oct. 6 the Lawrence Men's club will hear Dr. Louis Baker, professor of modern languages, speak at a dinner meeting at the Copper Kettle. Oct. 6, 7 and 8 are the dates of the annual fall book sale sponsored by the American Association of University Women to replenish its scholarship fund. The sale will take place at the Arcade building.

High School Game
Appleton High school gridders will play at home Oct. 8 in their first Fox Valley conference game with Green Bay West. The other outstanding events on the city's sports calendar this month are the first amateur fight card of the season Oct. 13 at Armory G and the Lawrence homecoming football game with Carroll college Oct. 22. Outagamie county league teams, Shiocton and the Greenville Merchants will settle for the championship before the month is half over.

Two important concerts at Lawrence Memorial chapel this month are those of the United States Navy band Oct. 10 under the auspices of the Appleton Lions club and of Amarty Hurlb, Spanish pianist, Oct. 26. Miss Hurlb's concert is the first in the Community Artists series.

The Sons of the American Legion drum and bugle corps, which won first place at the State Legion convention at Ashland this summer, will be feted at a civic banquet Oct. 11 at the Legion clubhouse. On the following day Knights of Columbus will have their annual landing day dinner-dance at the Conway hotel, with the Rev. Francis Bertman, Rhinelander, state chaplain, as principal speaker.

Founders' Day
On Oct. 14 Alpha Chi Omega sorority will observe Founders' day with a banquet, and on the following day the Riverview Country club will close its season with the traditional harvest home supper. Appleton Century club will have its first dinner-dance of the fall Oct. 18 at Riverview. Another formal party on this month's calendar is North Shore Golf club's final dinner-dance Oct. 22.

About 100 hardware dealers, members of the Wisconsin Retail Hardware association, will gather at the Hotel Appleton for a group meeting Oct. 13. Karl Haugen is in charge of local arrangements.

In celebration of the sequentennial of the constitution, the Women's Relief corps will give a harvest dinner and social program Oct. 20 at Elks hall. On the same day scores of Appleton residents will go to Green Bay to hear Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt speak. Her lecture will be sponsored by the Brown County Teachers' association in cooperation with other organizations.

Appleton also will have a distinguished speaker the latter part of the month when Dr. William E. Dodd, former United States ambassador to Germany and now on the faculty of the American university, Washington, D. C., speaks Oct. 24 at Lawrence Memorial chapel on "World Outlook for Democracies." He will speak under the auspices of the Appleton branch of the American Association of University Women.

Council Problems
The city council this month will face the problem of providing transportation for high school students living at great distances from the new senior high school, and whether or not to accept the PWA offer of $41,000 to remodel Lincoln school so the building may be used as a city hall.

Lincoln school, orthopedic school and opportunity school students will occupy the remodeled Morgan school for the first time this month. The remodeled building also will house the school administration offices.

The intramural and physical education program at the new senior high school, delayed because of lack of equipment, will get into full stride this month.

MODEST MAIDENS

"Who-o-o-o-Boo! Maybe that'll make your hair stay up."

Czechoslovakia Is Described In 'Strangers' by Houghton

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"Strangers" by Claud Houghton is dedicated to the memory of the beloved Dr. Marsaryk, late president of Czechoslovakia and at one time a professor at the University of Chicago.

The plot of Mr. Houghton's book is rather a hackneyed one, and the conversation is often dull and at times even repetitious in character. However, his exquisite descriptions of Czechoslovakia redeem the book from mediocrity, and are timely and informative. One learns much of the political background of this fascinating country whose modern history extends back a mere 20 years, to the treaty of Versailles, though they were an autonomous nation until three centuries ago. The courageous, industrious and ambitious nature of these hardy people is authentically depicted in Mr. Houghton's novel and for that reason is well worth reading. One is inspired with a desire to visit the ancient cities of Prague and Bratislava, one of which was a Roman stronghold in the days of Emperor Marcus Aurelius. One yearns to explore the ancient, winding streets, to dine in some of the centuries-old cafes, to breathe the mysterious atmosphere of its cathedrals and guild halls, and to purchase some of the fine examples of Czechoslovakian arts and crafts which are for sale at such moderate cost.

Concerns Modern Czechs
The story concerns these modern Czechs, (the action takes place over a period of three years, between 1933 to 1936) and while reading the book one feels that these people sense even then the approaching menace of Nazi invasion and persecution, just as it has actually occurred in 1938. All of their actions and decisions are tinged with this realization.

The protagonist of Mr. Houghton's novel is Hector Grantham, a charming, handsome and successful English business executive of 42. He is married to Hilda with whom he has been deeply and calmly in love for 10 years. Hilda, since she has become the mother of three lovely children has "gone maternal" to such an extent that her husband is her second consideration in everything, while her children absorb all her attentions, energies and devotion.

Hector's love is taken for granted. The inevitable follows: A friend and contemporary of Hector's dies suddenly, leaving a beautiful 19-year-old daughter practically penniless, after having been raised in luxury by an indulgent father. On his death bed he tells Crystal to call on his old friend Grantham and ask his help. Hector rents an apartment for Crystal and through a business associate obtains for her a position as model in a large and fashionable women's wear shop in London's West End. Crystal is an immediate success and rapid promotion follows. After two years of casual association Hector and Crystal fall deeply in love.

Mental Struggles
Much of the latter part of the book is devoted to Grantham's mental struggles, for his conscience is very active. He realizes that inevitably he must forego the thrill of Crystal's passionate love or sacrifice the happiness of his wife, Hilda, and his three children to whom he is devoted. Hector Grantham is an unusual personality with a striking gift of prophecy and second sight, which enables him to mentally visualize the outcome of decisions before he has actually acted upon them. His loyalty is so divided between his wife and his sweetheart that he finds himself unhappy and ill at ease with both women, though unable to give up either. He succumbs to Crystal's persuasions and the two flee together to Czechoslovakia for a five-week trip, while Hilda and the children are at the seashore, believing Hector to be in Paris on a business trip.

The final denouement is a foregone conclusion and Mr. Houghton tells this part of the story with sympathy and understanding. Grantham's only excuse for his actions is that "to be in love is to be the instrument of a power greater than oneself." One's sympathy is with Grantham for he is not the ordinary type of philandering husband. The book is mildly entertaining though the reader could go with a little less mental agonizing, and a good deal more about the Czechs.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Now that a new season is beginning—and a pretty important one at that—why not discover your own specific type of beauty and stick to it? Enhance it through the numerous ways at your disposal, utilizing all the little tricks you have learned.

This changing from a Greta Garbo to a Priscilla Lane during one short week is ruinous to the effect you want to give. Make up your mind as to which colors are more becoming to you. Do you look better in the tailored or the more fussy clothes? Should you wear your hair without numerous ringlets or do ringlets really add a great deal to your beauty?

American women are fast losing their individuality. Each runs for a permanent wave, a mink coat (if she can get it) and a diaphanous dress. When the phase for those passes, they run for whatever is in vogue whether it becomes them or not.

You may be decidedly chic by just remaining true to your own type. If a sleek hair dress with straight hair does something for your features and your expression, why wear it sleek. If you are a suit girl and can wear tailored accessories smartly, wear them. Don't think for a minute you will not be in fashion. If you do it right you will be leading the fashion!

I get pretty provoked with my sex when I get into a Fifth avenue bus and look the occupants over. Whether they are tall or short, stout or slim, dark or blond they all dress alike, wear their hair in the same fashion, and as a result—they all look ordinary.

Perhaps you are tired hearing about French women, but you shouldn't be. The majority of French women have a knack of looking decidedly fashionable and fascinating on a very small clothes allowance and no two look alike unless it is an accident! They don't try to look like American women do. They dare to be different and that is the secret of their fascination.

Study Your Type

Take a quiet hour and look at your beauty candidly. Forget what the girl friend is wearing, or the lady in the fashion magazine. Just take the pulse of fashion and adapt it to your own beauty. Use only that of it which will make you a more attractive woman. And be jubilant if you stand out of the crowd, nicely groomed and looking like yourself rather than like a thousand other women!

Be glad that your hair is not permanently waved, that you do not have to use scarlet nail polish if rose is flattering, that a smart tweed coat does more for you than a mink, and that no other woman can have a hat like yours because maybe it isn't a hat at all, but some scarf or something you picked up in your travels! Be different! Be beautiful! Be yourself!

How to Determine Your Proper Measurements (which are always a part of fashion!) will be mailed you if you will enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope with your request. Write me care of this paper.

Amount of Activity No Gauge of Instruction

BY ANGELO PATRI

When I began teaching I went as a substitute to the school of a principal who was firmly convinced that work was always accompanied by noise; that silence, even quiet, meant that nothing was being done.

The children in that school shouted their recitations so loudly that their voices could be heard through the walls. The teachers roared their directions and their instruction. Going down the halls for recess or dismissal, to assembly, filled the air with the sound of marching feet and the building vibrated as if shaken by an earthquake. I went home every evening with a headache.

One day the principal called me over to his desk. He used to sit on a platform out in the corridor, so he could hear his school working.

"Do you ever do any work in that room?" he asked.

"I try to," said I.

"Well, it can't be much for I haven't heard a peep out of that room since you went in. Wake up and get lively. Start those children working."

I wondered what was the matter with the man and went my way, seeking a quiet place out on the crowded street, to collect my thoughts for the afternoon's work.

Next morning he appeared in the classroom where I was teaching arithmetic. "Let me show you," said he. "Where is your ruler?"

I had no ruler. "How can you get along without one is more than I can see. Jackson, go get me a ruler from my desk," and his voice might have been heard echoing down the harbor. Jackson brought the ruler. The principal took it, struck the desk a mighty blow with it and shouted, "First row, stand," and the battle was on. Between shouts he smacked the desks, making boys jump. Soon desks were slamming, boys shouting, hands waving and feet clumping. How he could stand it was beyond me. "See? That's the way. Now let me see you do it." That was a sight he was never to see for it was just as impossible for me to make that noise as it was for him to be quiet. I went to another school with his hearty approval.

He died, and I thought his like would never come again; but his ghost still walks. The idea of Activity entered into educational minds recently and was introduced into many schools. One principal entered a classroom and found the children quietly working. "What's this? What's this? No activity, no noise, no moving about. Come, come, this one won't do. We must have activity. Be active! Be active!"

Once the voice spoke to its prophet. He was listening for it, waiting and hoping to hear it. There came a mighty rushing wind, but the voice was not in it. And fire, and earthquake, but the voice was not in them either. And by and by, in the deep stillness that followed all the noise, came the still small Voice. An idea is power born in the quiet of the spirit. It is beyond words, and quite apart from noise.

Old Gardener Says:

The lilac is a very accommodating shrub and needs no petting. It is true that the newer hybrids will stand less abuse than the old-fashioned common lilac, but they will grow well with average care. They need, first of all, good drainage, and no attempt should be made to grow them in a boggy spot. They thrive best, too, when they are fully exposed to the sun and air, although the old-fashioned lilac is often to be found growing for half a century beside a farmhouse door. The lilac likes lime, which should be added to soils that are especially acid. Bone meal is an excellent fertilizer, but no garden maker should hesitate to use barnyard manure for lilacs, for these plants are heavy feeders and thrive especially well when well rotted cow manure is dug into the ground around them. The fall is the time to plant them.

No Trump Convention Spots Aces

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Almost every modern bridge player knows the main feature of the 4-5 no trump convention; that it is based on two aces and the king of a bid suit, or three aces, and that the responder must bid five no trump if he holds two aces, or one ace and the kings of all bid suits. There is another valuable use for the convention, however, which I fear is not so well known. That is to show the possession of 150 aces.

South, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

North 3 spades

7 spades

East Pass

If the North-South partnership did not have at its command a convention that locates all four of the aces, the laydown grand slam contract would be unbidable. Note the utter logic of the bidding when South uses the 4-5 no trump convention. The opening spade bid is obvious. North might respond with two diamonds instead of three spades, but the latter bid is better on two important counts: First, a double raise in spades virtually shuts out East, and this is something that should appeal to North, since he has very little defense against hearts or clubs. Secondly, a three spade bid smooths the path for South to come in with four no trump if he has the values for it. Since there is nothing wrong with a three spade bid, and since it conforms beautifully to the requirements for this strong raise (good trump support and at least two honor tricks with a singleton), it must, by the process of elimination, be the right response.

Now let us return to South. After North's strong raise, South, with all four aces, must turn his thoughts to a slam. Naturally, he cannot be sure of taking thirteen tricks merely because he knows North has good spade support and outside strength. Hence, the best thing he can do is to present an accurate picture of his holding to North and let the latter make the final decision. To that end he initiates the 4-5 no trump convention, knowing that North will have to sign off (since he cannot have an ace), but intending to bid five no trump over North's response. This, then, is the meaning of the five no trump bid when immediately preceded by four no trump from the same player. It shows 150 aces. No other combination of cards justifies this sequence of bids. Note how easy this information makes North's next bid. He can immediately count six diamond tricks and at least four natural spade tricks. South has also the aces of hearts and clubs and surely will be able to ruff a heart in North's hand. Thus, even if South holds only a four card spade suit, the thirteen tricks will still be there.

South, despite his four aces, cannot begin to make the right decision. It is only North who can do this after finding out about the aces.

Seating Guests

Dear Mrs. Post: At an informal type of lunch party, is the hostess supposed to go first and lead the way into the dining-room? And in what manner does she seat her guests? Or are place cards really best at a lunch party?

Answer: When the guests number eight or more, it is usually best to put cards on the table. For less than that, the hostess seats them. She goes as far as the door with her most prominent guest and then from the door tells her where to sit. Also from the door she tells the next one where to sit. After several have entered ahead of her she then goes into the room herself, and stands at her own place and tells the others where they are to sit. After they are seated, she then sits down.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please give us a candid opinion of a young man who accepted an invitation to dine in the house of people whom he supposedly considered as friends and then left almost immediately to fulfill another social engagement which we know he made after he accepted the invitation to dinner. He thinks we should not feel hurt, and we on the other hand feel that he is expecting a good deal even if we are friends. In other words, we feel that for this reason he is taking advantage of us.

Answer: If he came to a dinner party and left much sooner than any one else, then you are right perhaps to feel as you do. On the other hand, if he came to family dinner and stayed a reasonable time after the meal, at least half an hour after leaving the dining room, I don't think he could be considered rude to have made another engagement for a time at which he supposed he would have left your house.

A Gift For The Hostess

Dear Mrs. Post: May one take a present to a hostess, or is it better to send it after the visit? And is such a gift supposed to be something for the house, or may it be personal?

Answer: There is no rule about this. One may always take a present to a hostess if one would like to. On the other hand, there is no possible discourtesy in arriving empty-handed. Again, it is always proper to send something either for the house or something personal af-

My Neighbor Says—

You should have your bulbs already now to put into the ground. Bulbs put in now will mean lots of bloom early next Spring before the rest of the flowers and shrubs get started.

When roasting chicken or turkey place the fowl with breast down in the baking pan for the first half hour of roasting. This allows the juices to flow into the breast, making it moist and tender.

If purchased trees or shrubs are properly handled by the nurserymen they will come to you with balls of earth around the roots and the earth wrapped with burlap. If they come any other way you should file a prompt protest, for the chances are that the plants will not thrive even if they do not promptly die.

When you grow disheartened and feel blue or when you are jilted or have seen a loved one whisked away by death, take out this case and read it again. The human spirit is invincible!

CASE L-130: Try to picture a sobbing little boy who has just been told he will probably never walk again because of the severe burns which he had received on his legs. Then shift the scene nearly 20 years and watch this same great athlete come pounding down the track to the plaudits of the multitude of spectators while he sets the world's record in the mile run!

The fastest mile ever run in the history of man, and by that crippled child—Glenn Cunningham!

Shift the scene to England where a little boy was ridiculed because of his clubbed feet. His home life

LOOK AHEAD

Not on your life! Nobody since George Washington has probably been a more vigorous and fearless political leader.

Why do I cite these cases of crippled and scarred people who rose to greatness? Just to give courage to the thousands who feel that life is miserable because they happen to have a birth mark or a burn, a scar or a missing arm or leg.

Live Courageously

Abraham Lincoln was defeated when he ran for the state legislature. Then he went into business and failed. It took him the next 17 years to pay off the bad debts he incurred from his partner.

He fell in love, but his sweetheart died. He ran for Congress and was defeated. He sought the lofty job of Senator and likewise lost. His life was a series of defeats until 1860.

Take a lesson from this great man. Never let life's problems get you down. Use your stumbling blocks for stepping stones. Grit your teeth, take a lesson from your present failure, and utilize your improved knowledge for winning the next contest.

Life may batter you around. You may be bankrupted at 50. But you still have your brain and the experience stored therein is your greatest asset.

Gift-Edged Securities

"An investment in knowledge always pays the best dividends," said wise old Benjamin Franklin.

Knowledge is picked up from our contacts with life. You don't need to go to college to obtain it.

There were plenty of college graduates in America in 1850. And Lincoln didn't even have a grammar school education. But he far outshone the law school graduates of our best Eastern universities.

Every day you are in a new classroom. Every person you meet and every situation you face become your teachers. If you keep your eyes open, you'll win—ultimately. Keep your chin up, smile and pay 3 sincere compliments per day!

2nd Wife Should Assert Her Household Rights

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—I married a widower with children and I earnestly desire to do my duty by them and make them happy, but I am being made perfectly miserable by my husband, the children and the first wife's relatives all telling me perpetually what my predecessor used to do. They use her as a club over my head. Everything I do I am criticized and told that wasn't the way my predecessor did it. My husband isn't my husband. He is still the husband of the dead wife. My home isn't my home. It is hers. I have tried to please all of them, but in vain, and I am tired of trying to pattern my life after that of some one else. I feel I have a right to my own opinions and my own way of running a house which should be mine. I love my husband and the children, but being the underdog is no fun. Will you please write a little advice to a stepmother who wants to do what is right but is tired of playing second fiddle.

MARYANNE.

DOROTHY DIX Answer:

The only way any of us can keep from being the underdog is to fight one way up, and I strongly advise you to do so. Give your stupid husband, your stupid stepchildren and the meddling in-laws a few good hard bites that will make them afraid of you and keep their hands off of you.

It will probably precipitate a grand old family row, but when the dust is cleared away you will find that what you have gained was worth the battle, for you will have got possession of your home and you will have won the respect of your oppressors. More than that, you will have put yourself in a position to be of some help to your stepchildren, which you cannot be as long as they see you a poor, weak, spineless creature who lets everybody trample over her and hasn't enough backbone to stand up for her rights.

There is nothing that children have such a contempt for as they have for cowardice, and you try in vain to control and guide youngsters who see you meekly swallowing insults from their relatives, and you permit them to tell you where you get off. The only way you can establish your authority with your stepchildren is just to make yourself head of the house in reality—as you are in theory—and tell them that while their mother's way of doing things was no doubt an admirable one, that it is now outmoded and that you have established a new modern regime.

As for your husband, have a plain talk with him and tell him that if he is still more in love with a memory than he is with you that you are leaving; that you are a flesh-and-blood woman and you are not going to play second fiddle to a ghost. That will wake him up, for the chances are that he doesn't realize how he is hurting you by his continual references to his first wife as a model of perfection and his giving you to understand that he considers you a poor substitute for this paragon.

Anyway, any man who is always throwing his first wife up to his second wife and who hasn't intelligence enough to know that a second wife is always more jealous of a first wife than she could be of any living siren hasn't got the sense of a fishing worm.

Dear Miss Dix—What can be done to compel a man almost 50 to assume the responsibility for the support of his family? He has an A-1 education, general and professional, yet for five years he has done nothing but sit and reflect what a cruel world it is. He makes no effort to make a living.

BAFFLED.

Answer:

If a man lacks energy and initiative, there is no way to supply it artificially to him. Laziness is the most incurable of all vices. The only people who have profited by the depression are those to whom it has furnished an alibi for not working.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTmarsh

Archie Lumsden, myself, visitor to the French Riviera.

Ottile Wills, beautiful American lass.

Rene Geiss, man behind a murder plot.

Yesterday: We intercept a message of the conspirators, but it contains only the mysterious word, "Amour."

Chapter 36
BREAKING AND ENTERING

"Ottile was supposed to meet us here at six-thirty," I told Dunning. "Do you realize it's almost seven thirty and that girl hasn't shown up yet?"

He groaned. "Let's call the hotel and see if they've any word of her there."

But when we got through to the Carlton, the reception clerk was politely definite. Miss Wills, he said, had not returned. Her uncle also had just gone out, but before he left he had been inquiring if anyone had seen his niece.

Dunning's face was grave as I told him the news. "Don't like it," said he, "not one little bit. If I knew the name of her friends at Monte Carlo, we could check up on when she left them, but we don't, so that's that. I've got a car here, and I'll drive out along the coast road and see if I can see anything of her. On the way I'll drop you at the Carlton and you can wait there till the old man gets back and get him to call up Monaco."

I could think of no better plan, and so we set out. "And what about tomorrow?" I asked.

"The old man doesn't rise till eight, and they're not likely to try to do him in in his bed. You and Hugo be at the hotel by seven thirty, and at least we'll be wise to whatever's doing. I'll meet you in the lounge."

The reception clerk at the Carlton told me that Virgine Wills was still out, and I made my way back to the terrace to watch for the old man's return. Then I saw the uniformed figure of Cassandra Chubb threading her way toward me, with small regard for the people whose elbows she joggled in passing.

"Mr. Lumsden," she began without preamble, "where's Ottile?"

"That's exactly what I want to know," I told her. "I'm waiting here for her. I've got the name of the people at Monte Carlo she went to see."

She made a gesture of impatience. "I've already called the folks in Monte Carlo. She left there at five thirty."

I whistled lugubriously. "Well," I said, "all the consolation we've got is that Mr. Dunning has gone out to look for her. Look here, you're a sensible woman. Keep around here—don't go to bed until she comes back, and when she does, or if you get word from her ring up the Chateau d'Amour."

"I will," she said, and then, with a sort of moan of anguish, "Land sakes! What will her uncle say when he hears all this?"

"Let's hope he won't have to hear it," said I. "Keep your chin up, Miss Chubb. Ottile's the sort of girl who'll always land on her feet. And with that I made my way towards the ramp."

But I was not to effect an escape so easily, for just as I reached the bar, a gaunt, gauntly clad figure rose from a solitary table and laid a hand on my arm. "You are in a hurry, my young friend," said the voice of Rene Geiss.

A Mad Idea

"Good Lord!" said I, staring at him. I had as nearly as possible asked him what he was doing there,

He gave a funny, formal little bow. "It is a bargain," he acknowledged.

"It's a bargain," I echoed, and halted in my tracks. "This is where I turn off, and shaking him away by the hand, I swung off into the rue du Dragon.

Strange Wilderness

I paused, hesitating outside the villa gate. I had already ruled out the railings as unsuitable but there still remained the alley at the side of the house. I turned quickly up the narrow passage.

It was not so dark here, for the night sky was clear overhead, and a faint glow showed where the moon would shortly rise. I crept down the lane, scanning the wall for some possible foothold.

Presently I found it—a half about a yard from the ground, where a great cliver of flint had been recently dislodged.

I set my foot in it, gripped the top of the wall, and painfully hoisted myself to the top, and now I saw that the moon had already risen, for a great, top-sided, amber soup-plate hung low over the house-top.

I swung both legs over the wall and dropped on all fours on patch of rough gravel.

It was a strange wilderness of a place that I landed in, a place of barely half-lights and menacing shadows of dim tree-trunks that loomed suddenly up at one, or broken statues leering down at one from the shade of some overgrown palm.

For the first time I had a clear view of the facade of the house, a two-storied structure, with a loggia over the porch, supported on either side by monstrous cupids. I liked the look of that loggia, and I liked still more the look of the sturdy, century-old wistaria that covered the wall below it, for the rugged stem, as thick around as a man's calf, looked as if it would stand a ton weight.

I gave it an experimental tug, found it as immovable as a rock, and set my foot on the next foot. In another minute I had hooked one leg over the railing of the loggia and was peering across it through the open windows of a darkened room. There were long chairs on the loggia and a soft thick matting underfoot, and my ruffled espadilles made no sound as I tiptoed forwards.

As my foot touched the sill, I stopped short. Every nerve in my

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

An old-time cowboy story is told in this letter from Mr. S. C. Pettigrew, who tells me he is now 73 years of age:

"I say in your stories a short time ago that if anyone has some true stories about animals to send them in. Over 50 years ago, I was out in the mountains of Colorado, and spent nine years there. I could tell many interesting stories about bear hunting, bronco busting and shooting.

"I was raised in Illinois, and my brother and cousin and I went out to Thompson's ranch, in Colorado north of Pike's Peak.

"One day in 1883 Thompson and a rider man went out and brought in a bunch of cattle. In the bunch was a cow Thompson wanted to take northeast to a pasture. I went to the corral and told him he'd better throw two ropes on her and spread apart, but he said that if he let her out with other cattle he could drive her.

"I opened the gate and she left the other cattle and ran for the woods. She was dragging a 30-foot rope. We rode after her. Thompson reached down, got the rope and snubbed her to a tree. I got off my horse to loosen the rope, but as soon as I did it she made a dive for me, and tried to hook me with her long horns. I dodged her, but she came back. I ran around a tree... and caught the rope... she turned, and I ran toward a tree about 100 yards away.

"As I was logging it for the tree, she was at first about 15 yards behind. She caught up to me before I could get to the tree, and rammed her horns a-straddle of me, and I fell face down. She had her head on my back, and rammed her horns into the ground on each side of me, instead of through me—or I would not be writing about it. It seemed a long time, but at last she was satisfied and walked over me and did not step on me. As soon as she was off, I jumped up and tied the rope to a tree."

That was almost, but not quite, the end of the story. One of the cowboys tried to put a halter on the fierce cow, but she slipped it off and charged at Thompson as he came riding up. At last the ranch owner said to let this cow go free. She trotted off, and Mr. Pettigrew writes that he never saw her again. I have an idea that perhaps he was just as glad that he didn't see her anymore!

Highs Pass to Win Over Sheboygan

Rally in 2nd Half After Looking Bad in Opening Periods

SCORE IS 26 TO 13

Bussing Counts Two Markers, Sample, Filz One Each

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
SHEBOYGAN — Staging a second half comeback after being badly outplayed in the first half, Appleton High school griders defeated Sheboygan Central here last night in a Fox River Valley conference game, 26 to 13.

Appleton trailed at the half by a 13 to 7 score, its touchdown being something of a gift. Otherwise the Terrors had shown nothing except that they lacked almost everything in general and fight in particular. But they revived between halves and showed to great advantage in the final two quarters. Sheboygan, on the other hand, folded in the second half and looked much like Appleton in the first.

Whereas the Central squad had tossed short passes, long passes, ran the end and tossed laterals and skirted off the tackles and through the line in the first half, it did nothing in the second. Appleton did most of its damage in the second half via forward passes.

Revised Lineup
The ball game started with Appleton showing a revised lineup. Becker, center, was on the sidelines. Fraser was at left tackle, Brasch at right and Koletzke at right guard while Swamp was missing from the backfield. When the team got clicking in the last half Becker was back at center and Swamp was in the backfield doing the picking. The contest opened with Sheboygan receiving. After three more or less useless attempts, Central attempted to punt on fourth down instead of third as is customary, and the pass went over the kicker's head. The Chairs recovered on the 14 but the ball went to Appleton on downs. Sample then galloped around his right end and Filz went off his left tackle and fought his way across the goal line for a marker in less than time it takes to write the year. Heinritz booted a kick from placement for the point.

Sheboygan was battling hard despite the break, and when it regained possession of the ball started a varied attack which netted two first downs, the last on the Central 45. After a time out, Schukow tossed a pass to Schroeder to the Appleton 34. Seven more yards were added before the period ended.

Sheboygan Scores
A lateral pass play featuring Backey on the business end, gave the Central squad a first down on the Appleton 16. A forward pass, Backey to Lau, made it first and goal to go on the six. A plunge was stopped and a pass incomplete. Then Backey passed to Lau, over the center of the line for a marker. An attempted dropkick was low and Appleton led 7 to 6.

Appleton received the kickoff and punted to Sheboygan on the Central 46 after which the team opened as perfect a running and passing attack as a high school ever attempted and in four plays scored over a badly demoralized Appleton team. A pass, Putnam to Lau, with the former taking his good natured time throwing, scored the marker.

Oshkosh, West in Non-League Wins

Former Defeats Rufus King, Latter Wallops West DePere

Oshkosh-Oshkosh High school downed Rufus King of Milwaukee here last night in a non-conference game by a 23 to 12 score. The locals scored the first touchdown on the fourth play of the game. Spahrt, right end, grabbing a fumbled ball in midair and running 24 yards for a touchdown. Lambert's placekick for the extra point was good. It was only six plays later that Luker, Oshkosh fullback, threw a sleeper pass to Roth who ran 20 yards for a second touchdown. Lambert's placekick for the point failed. Midway in the second quarter Luker went over from the 1-yard stripe and Lambert kicked for the extra point. Ruerer, Milwaukee halfback, who played an outstanding game, scored on a wide end run from the 26-yard line. Weininger's attempted kick from placement was not good. The half ended 20 to 6.

Wellky scored early in the third period for Rufus King, lunging it over from the 3-yard line. Weininger's kick was blocked. Oshkosh moved the ball to the 14 and on third down Lambert booted a field goal to end the scoring.

WEST BAY COYS
Green Bay — Coach Leo (Nap) Van Sistine's West De Pere Black Phantoms went down to a hard defeat, 19-0 in a non-conference tilt last night with Green Bay West. Midway in the second period, Ronnie Motiff ran 21 yards to the Phantom's 41 to pave the goal trial. Successful marches by Motiff brought the Bays to the 5-yard stripe, where Royal Dessert smashed through for the initial marker. Dessert repeated twice again in the next half his last effort tallying on a Herliche aerial. A wild 46-yard race around end by DePere on a lateral to the five was DePere's last scoring bid.

Chaffin Chapter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

THE Cub-Pittsburgh series is all over but the memory will linger, even after the world series. It apparently was a terrific struggle and because we know there are thousands of Cub fans hereabouts, we once more are stealing something from the Chicago Daily News and John P. Carmichael. It's just too good for any Cub fan to miss.

We surrender to inadequacy. This Cub-Pirate pennant fight has gone far beyond our poor power to picture in words. When you squirm to fashion the proper pinnacle for a "Dirzy" Dean only to find you need at least its twin that a Gabby Hartnett may also brush the stars, word-painting becomes a magic art not given to the mine run of mortals to diffuse.

So let this be, today, a confession of helplessness to treat an afternoon which beggars description; an afternoon in the life of a stout-hearted Irishman who, as darkness almost wrapped him from the sight of 35,000 quaking fans, changed the map of a baseball world with one devastating blow. And that he is alive and in one piece at the moment, ready to carry on from that smash, is no fault of a Cub team and a Cub populace gone mad.

For a second successive night we stood in the clubhouse of crazy men in play suits. Only this time they weren't even articulate. We can still see 'em fighting for words, staring at one another with glazed eyes. We can still see 'em pushing Hartnett from wall to wall with the irresistible force of robots gone wild. We can still see Gabby trying vainly to free himself from idolatrous team-mates.

We can still see Billy Herman standing in the middle of the floor, arms akimbo. When he could talk he was first just a whisper of awe: "Lord God Almighty." Dawning consciousness of the moment brought it out again, louder, hoarser: "Lord God Almighty." Then the full realization of the terrific sight he had just watched in the twilight smote him. "Lord God ALMIGHTY," he suddenly screamed and hurled his glove he knew not where.

He wasn't even swearing. It was as though he was asking the heavens above to witness that this thing he'd just seen with his own eyes could really happen to him and those caught up in the madelstrom crowd.

Dean's day was great. This one was greater. This was everybody's day until Hartnett wrestled it from them all with that miraculous, breath-taking blow in the ninth with two down, two strikes against him and a tie game about to be put over for a double-header today because it was no longer possible to see in the gloom. Far out in the stands a mailman caught the ball and even while Gabby struggled in the arms of his men, it appeared in the clubhouse with a plea for the Hartnett name.

"Give him a new one and I'll sign it," ordered Gabby. "I want to keep this one forever. I've had the greatest thrill of this old life now."

Over in a corner "Rip" Collins, himself one of the day's heroes at that plate, tried to break the hysteria with his inevitable gag. "I get some credit," he yelled. "Gabby used the Collins stand at the plate." Elbowing his way to Gabby's side strode Trainer Andy Lotshaw, a comic figure with his cap awry and wiping away at streaming eyes with a huge towel.

"You big lug," he wept, "you hit it just like I used to do." He was shoved aside, sniffling, and "Dirzy" Dean leaped upon the managerial desk behind which Gabby had sought refuge. "Dir" teetered there back and forth on the balls of his feet, matted gray hair hanging over his forehead like an old crone's disheveled locks.

"Oh," he meamed. "You . . . you Gabby." He tried to talk with his hands, but lost his balance and fell back into unsympathetic arms. Sheer exhaustion at relief from the tension of what they'd gone through finally drove some to their chairs, where they slumped like marionettes whose guiding strings had let them down. Through the half-open door came the frenzied roar of the crowd from which, only minutes before, Andy Frain's ushers had barely saved Hartnett in his entity.

Now up, now down, now up again, the Cubs and Pirates went all the heart-straining day. The tide of battle surged bitterly through breaks, good and bad. It was almost too much for human flesh and blood to watch. And that we do not own is off once more to HIM and THEM.

YESTERDAY'S STARS
Johnny Mize, Cardinals — His triple with bases loaded led Cards' comeback to the Cubs 7-7.

Paul Derringer, Reds, and Russ Bauers, Pirates — Derringer gave five hits to win doubleheader opener 7-1; Bauers' four hitter took nightcap 4-2.

Luke Appling, White Sox — His double drove in two runs for 7-5 win over Browns.

Beloit Trounces Carleton, 20-7, In Midwest Tilt

Beloit — (7) — Beloit college won the opening Midwest conference football game here last night with a 20 to 7 decision over Carleton of Northfield, Minn.

Carleton made its touchdown in the first period on a 30-yard pass, Lockrem to Minkin. Reishus kicked the point. Later in the same period Virgili passed to Andrews for Beloit's first touchdown.

Griffith ran 15 yards in the second quarter and 20 in the fourth for the other Beloit touchdowns. Passes from Virgili to Andrews and Griffith netted the extra points.

It was Beloit's second victory of the young season.

Pie Traynor Says Pirates Haven't Given Up the Ship

Cincinnati — (7) — Pie Traynor, whose present idea of heaven is a snow-capped peak in the Himalayas, says it isn't all over.

This man, only recently the toast of Pittsburgh's golden triangle, acknowledged practically nothing today as he ordered his Pirates to make up for yesterday's split dou; bleheader with the Reds. The draw all but eliminated Pittsburgh from the National league pennant chase.

"We're down," said Traynor, "but we're not out. That tie the Cubs played with the Cards may start them on the downgrade. Anyway, they've lost three straight before this season and we've won two straight quite a few times. Don't count it over our chances yet."

So they all stopped counting at nine and let him send Red Lucas out to hold on to the ropes today. Red, a former Cincinnati pitcher who has spanked the Reds with regularity this season, was opposed by Bucky Walters, after his sixth straight victory.

Chuters Beat Kimberley On Intercepted Pass

BY RAY MAUTHE
KIMBERLEY — Before a crowd estimated at about 800 wild and woolly fans, St. John High school of Little Chute defeated an over-confident Papermaker team by a score of 6 to 0 at the ball park Friday evening. Lamers of the Chuters intercepted a pass on Kimberley's 42 and raced unmolested for a touchdown. The try for placement was wide.

The teams battled toe-to-toe throughout the game. In the final period, taking the ball on their own 24, the Papermakers passed their way to the Hollanders' 38. A buck at the line and a pass over the line was intercepted on the Chuters' 30 before the game ended.

The Papermakers kicked to the Little Chute 30 in the opening period. Line smashes failed to produce the necessary yardage, and the Hollanders kicked to the Papermakers 30. Kimberley tried the Little Chute line on three plays and kicked to St. John's 30.

The Chuters tried end runs to gain two first downs on the mid-strip where the drive bogged and the ball was kicked to Kimberley's 28 as the first quarter ended.

The second quarter was a saw-saw, hard-fought battle with the teams giving all they had. Papermakers could not make their laterals connect because of a wet ball which caused fumbling. The half ended with both sides scoreless.

The teams played bang-up ball in the third and fourth quarters and the break came when Lamers of the visitors intercepted a pass on Kimberley's 42 and raced to score, 6-0.

Northern State League Titled Will be Decided at Clintonville

Clintonville — The date tomorrow — the place is the Clintonville athletic park, the occasion the final game of the Northern State league baseball series between Two Rivers and Clintonville. Previous arrangements had the game scheduled for Friday night.

Three games were scheduled between Two Rivers and Clintonville to determine the winner of the pennant. So far the results are even with the Vets taking the first 4 to 3 and the Truckers copping the last encounter 5 to 1. The Vets won the first half title from Kaukauna in a playoff game and the Trucks took the bunting from Seymour in the last scheduled game of the season. At the end of the first half Clintonville was near the bottom. The second half showed a remarkable change in the Truckers aided by Sid Felts, elongated right hand hurler who spurred the squad on and won every game he hurled during the second half.

In the final game the Vets will pitch either Lucky Lucy Alberts who pitched the first game of the series and won and then lost the second game after allowing only seven hits, or Lefty Fortin who is a very reliable pitcher but not so effective in daytime ball. Pupeter will be on the receiving end. The Truckers will use either Tommy Tomlin who lost the first game 4 to 2 because of errors on the part of the Trucks, or Sidney Felts the victor of the last encounter, with Red Smith doing the catching.

New York—(AP)—Further optimism over the fading of European war tension, combined with hopes for a pickup in business now that world peace prospects have brightened, brought fresh buying into the stock market today.

While profit-taking intervals were frequent, gains ran to two or more points at the best, with a few issues posting new highs for the year.

Top prices were reduced somewhat here and there at the close of the brief session, but many favorites ended at the best levels of the day.

Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

Encouraging to recovery contingent was the apparently unexpected entrance of the German army into the Sudetenland and later word that a Czechoslovak break with Poland had been avoided by the former's acceptance of the Polish territorial demands.

Brightening the market picture also were signs Germany and France would bury the hatchet and reach an accord similar to the one effected between Great Britain and the reich. Additional inspiration was derived from expectations the British would get together with Spain.

The outlook for copper producers may be improving was thought presaged by announcement Anaconda would reopen one of its largest Butte, Mont., mines on Oct. 3.

Bonds, both foreign and domestic, were in demand at substantially higher quotations. Commodities were narrow.

Curb shares moved forward.

Electrolux Will Make Ideal Gift This Christmas

Sold by Appleton Appliance Co., Distributors Of Shellane Gas

A purchase as important as a refrigerator to serve as this year's household Christmas present warrants early consideration and careful investigation. Therefore, it is not an untimely Christmas suggestion which the Appleton Appliance Company, 219 N. Story street, is making. The Servel Electrolux refrigerator, offered by this firm, boasts so many quality money-saving features that a refrigerator purchaser would indeed be unwise not to investigate thoroughly before any purchase is made. The remarkable advantages of the Electrolux:

Permanently silent because there are no moving parts in the freezing system, the Servel Electrolux saves on operating costs, upkeep, and food protection. Owners records from all parts of the country, states the Appleton Appliance company, show that operating costs never exceed a few cents per day. Upkeep costs are low because there are no moving parts in the freezing system to wear and require attention. A great saving on food is realized, this firm points out, because there is always a safe degree of cold in the Electrolux food compartments with the freezing system operating continuously without starts and stop, assuring constant protection of food at all times.

The beautiful Servel Electrolux refrigerator may be operated with either bottled gas, city gas, or kerosene. Six different models are offered, ranging in size from the small apartment models to the largest family refrigerator requirement. Liberal purchasing arrangements are being made by the Appleton Appliance Company to enable buyers to secure the Servel Electrolux refrigerator for Christmas without any undue strain on the family pocketbook. Offered especially now before Christmas is its layaway plan, requiring a small down payment with no additional payments or carrying charges until Christmastime. Any money paid toward the refrigerator during this interval will, of

FIVE NEIGHBORING HOMES PAINTED AT "ONE FELL SWOOP"

For 60 years and three generations the name of Feavel has been associated with painting and interior decorating, and today Appleton looks to Leland Feavel, 403 N. Oneida street, for some of its finest work. The five homes above, adjoining each other on Lawrence court, are an example of the Feavel brand of work. These five homes were painted as a "unit" job by the Feavel concern recently, seldom has a painting operation of this nature been seen in Appleton. From left to right they are Lawrence court homes of Edmund H. Rossmeissl at 208, E. H. Mullen at 212, Bert Cowan at 216, Aug. Arndt at 218 and A. J. Loveland at 223.

Mr. Feavel, who has been associated with two brothers and his father, has a wide range of experience in which he has been working in California, and has a broad knowledge of decoration gained by working in many different points in the country. He attended the Chicago Painting school for specialized training.

For the past 10 years, six expert painters have worked with Mr. Feavel. He was, for example, interior decorator for the Post-Crescent hotel home in 1928, and so well was his work done that the home today has retained its original charm and beauty without redecorating. At present he is decorating the I. G. Berg home at 220 N. Green Bay street. Recently he completed redecorating the Elks Club bowling alleys, using modern colorings throughout.

Mr. Feavel has a complete knowledge of the 1939 color styles which he points out—are subdued. A telephone call to him at 1621 is all that is necessary to arrange for a consultation.

Cheap Paints Not 'Bargain' Claims Nehls Company

Advocates Use of Moore Paints; Imperial and Birge Wallpapers

There is no such thing as a "bargain" when it comes to buying paint, maintains the William Nehls firm, 226 W. Washington street. Cheap paints are never manufactured to save their users money. Inferior paint means a poor-looking job and usually requires expensive repainting.

Music AS INSPIRATION

Music is the ideal food for the soul and many great men who have achieved high places of leadership use music as a means of building reserve power and getting enjoyment out of life. The late Alfred Einstein, the world's greatest scientist, played music at least on hour every morning. He said that when he had a difficult problem to solve he would take his violin in an upper room of his home to play for himself "in order that he might think more clearly."

Cyrus H. K. Curtis, of Saturday Evening Post distinction, Ex-Vice President Chas. M. Dawes, the late Nicholas Longworth, the former Speaker of the House of Representatives, the late Julius Rosenwald who was the head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Ralph Moysieki, the builder of the great Delaware River bridge, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, of cornflakes and Battle Creek Sanitarium fame, these men and countless others have used music as a relaxation and as a source of personal development.

Who knows what your child might do in music in the next ten years if you give him a chance to study now?

LEARNMAN SISTERS DEMONSTRATE MUSICAL ABILITY

Norma and Lucille Learnman have completed the professional course on the Hawaiian guitar and can they play! These smiling mistresses of music are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Learnman, 319 E. Cook street, New London, Wis.

"We believe," says the Van Zeeland Music Co., "that we offer the only guaranteed courses of guitar lessons in the state of Wisconsin. We herewith quote a statement printed on the enrollment card given to each new student: 'GUARANTEE—We agree to the above and guarantee to teach you to play any Standard Music on the Hawaiian Steel Guitar—Spanish Guitar—Tenor Guitar—in 65 weeks or we will continue to teach you FREE until you can accomplish same.'

"Why be satisfied that just 'taking lessons'?" Investigate the music courses offered by one of Wisconsin's largest teaching organizations. The Van Zeeland Music Co. invites you to witness our classes in action. The proof of the pudding is in the eating and that's why we want you to hear our students play.

"We furnish entertainment for churches and lodges, and other social affairs. Call 1650—the Van Zeeland Music Co."
